

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE

---

DEAN SHERMAN, :
 :
 : No.: 43,2020
 :
 Plaintiff Below :
 Appellant, :
 : ON APPEAL FROM THE
 : SUPERIOR COURT OF
 v. : DELAWARE OF AND
 : FOR KENT COUNTY
 :
 STEPHEN P. ELLIS, ESQUIRE, :
 :
 :
 Defendant Below :
 Appellee. :

---

APPELLANT DEAN SHERMAN'S OPENING BRIEF

IPPOLITI LAW GROUP
Patrick K. Gibson, Esquire (#6357)
1225 N. King Street, Suite 900
Wilmington, DE 19801
Ph: (302) 428-1400
Fax: (302) 428-9664
Email: patrick@ippolitolawgroup.com
Attorneys for Plaintiff/Appellant Dean Sherman

Dated: March 17, 2020

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
TABLE OF CONTENTS .....	i
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES .....	iii
NATURE OF THE PROCEEDINGS .....	1
SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENTS .....	3
STATEMENT OF THE FACTS .....	5
ARGUMENT .....	11
I. THE SUPERIOR COURT ERRED IN FINDING THAT THERE WAS INSUFFICIENT RECORD EVIDENCE TO ALLOW A JURY TO CONCLUDE THAT PLAINTIFF’S EX-WIFE WOULD HAVE EXECUTED THE PRE-NUPTIAL AGREEMENT IF IT INCLUDED THE STATUTORY WAIVER OF ADDITIONAL DISCLOSURE LANGUAGE .....	11
A. Questions Presented .....	11
B. Standard and Scope of Review .....	11
C. Merits .....	12
i. The Superior Court Overlooked Substantial Circumstantial Evidence Supporting the Inference that Plaintiff’s Ex-Wife Would Have Executed the Pre-Nuptial Agreement, Had it Contained the Statutory Waiver of Additional Disclosure Language .....	12
II. THE SUPERIOR COURT ERRED IN DETERMINING THAT PLAINTIFF DID NOT DEMONSTRATE A GENUINE ISSUE OF MATERIAL FACT REGARDING PROXIMATE CAUSE OF DAMAGES .....	16
A. Questions Presented .....	16

B. Standard and Scope of Review .....	17
C. Merits .....	19
i. Plaintiff Produced Substantial Circumstantial Evidence Supporting the Inference that Plaintiff’s Ex-Wife Would Have Executed the Pre-Nuptial Agreement, Had it Contained the Statutory Waiver of Additional Disclosure Language, Thus Establishing But For Causation of Damages, and Weighing that Evidence Required Making a Credibility Determination .....	19
ii. Plaintiff May Still Call His Ex-Wife to Testify at Trial .....	23
III.THE SUPERIOR COURT ERRED IN NOT ADOPTING AN INCREASED RISK OF HARM STANDARD FOR CERTAIN TRANSACTIONAL MALPRACTICE CLAIMS .....	25
A. Questions Presented .....	25
B. Standard and Scope of Review .....	25
C. Merits .....	26
i. The Superior Court Erred By Not Adopting An Increased Risk of Harm Standard For Transactional Malpractice Claims When Transactional Negligence Left Transaction Vulnerable To Legal Challenge .....	26
III. CONCLUSION .....	35
RATIONALE AND JUDGMENT OF THE TRIAL COURT .....	36

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., LLC v. Cirrus Indus. , 871 A.2d 428, 433 (Del. 2005).....	passim
Brown v. Gartside , 2004 Del. Super. LEXIS 83, at *1, 7-8 (Del. Super. March 5, 2004) .....	19, 20
Caraballo v. Delaware Dep't of Corr. , 2001 Del. Super. LEXIS, at *2 (Del. Super. March 22, 2001) .....	11, 17, 25
Cerberus Int'l, Ltd. v. Apollo Mgmt., L.P. , 794 A.2d 1141, 1150 (Del. 2002).....	12, 18, 26
Dickerson v. Murray , 2016 Del. Super. LEXIS 166 (Del. Super. Mar. 24, 2016).....	18, 20, 21, 22
Flowers v. Ramunno , 27 A.3d 551 (Table), 2011 Del. LEXIS 434, at *4 (Del. Aug. 16, 2011).....	18
Gautam v. De Luca , 521 A.2d 1343, 1348 (N.N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. 1987) .....	29, 30
Jerista v. Murray , 842 A.2d 840, 883 A.2d 350 (N.J. 2005) .....	29
Jerista v. Murray , 842 A.2d 840, (N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. 2004) .....	29
Keller v. Del-Homes, Inc. , 1999 Del. Super. LEXIS 430, at *2-5 (Del. Super. March 12, 1999) .....	19
Keywell Corp. v. Piper &amp; Marbury, L.L.P. , 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1445, at *17-20, 26-28 (W.D.N.Y. Feb. 11, 1999) .....	31
Lieberman v. Employers Ins. Of Wausau , 419 A.2d 417, 419 (N.J. 1980) .....	27, 28, 29

Middlebrook v. Ayres , 2004 Del. Super. LEXIS 179, at *19 (Del. Super. June 9, 2004) .....	18
Nicolet Instrument Corp. v. Lindquist &amp; Vennum , 34 F.3d 453, 457 (7th Cir. 1994) .....	30, 31
Petriello v. Kalman , 546 A.2d 474, 482-83 (Conn. 1990) .....	32
Price Waicukauski &amp; Riley, LLC v. Murray , 47 F. Supp. 3d 810, 823, 828-29 (S.D. Ind. 2014) .....	30
Robinson v. Foulkstone Med. Pavilion Condo. Ass’n , 2018 Del. Super. LEXIS 398, *9 (Del. Super. Aug. 14, 2018) .....	19
Stayton v. Clariant Corp. , 2014 Del. LEXIS 1, at *5 (Del. Jan. 2, 2014) .....	23
Telxon Corp. v. Meyerson , 802 A.2d 257, 262 (Del. 2002).....	12, 18, 26
United States v. Anderson , 669 A.2d 73, 74, 79 (Del. 1995) .....	32
United States v. Cumberbatch , 647 A.2d 1098, 1100 n.3 (Del. Super. 1994) .....	32, 33, 34
Statutes
13 Del. C. § 326 .....	1, 5, 6
Rules
Super. Ct. Civ. R. 45 .....	24

NATURE OF THE PROCEEDINGS

This is a legal malpractice action arising from an underlying transactional matter. During the underlying transaction, Defendant, Stephen P. Ellis, Esquire (“Defendant”) negotiated, drafted, and prepared a pre-nuptial agreement for Plaintiff, Dean Sherman (“Plaintiff”). The pre-nuptial agreement Defendant prepared for Plaintiff did not include statutory disclosure waiver language in the Agreement, as per 13 Del. C. § 326. In the course of a divorce proceeding, many years following the underlying transaction, Plaintiff’s ex-wife, Margaret Sherman née Willoughby (“Ms. Willoughby”), successfully moved to set aside the pre-nuptial agreement, although this Court later reversed the Family Court’s decision following an interlocutory appeal.

On June 12, 2018, Plaintiff filed a Complaint bringing claims for Legal Malpractice and Respondeat Superior against Defendant and a number of other defendants, who were later dismissed voluntarily by Plaintiff. At the close of discovery, Defendant moved for summary judgment. Following oral argument on November 22, 2019, the Hon. Jeffrey J. Clark (“Judge Clark”) issued an Order and Opinion, dated January 2, 2020, granting summary judgment in favor of Defendant. Judge Clark ruled that there was insufficient record evidence to support the inference that Ms. Willoughby would have executed the pre-nuptial agreement if it had contained the 13 Del. C. § 326 statutory disclosure waiver language.

Accordingly, Judge Clark ruled that there was insufficient evidence to find that Defendant's failure to include this language was the proximate cause of Plaintiff's damages.

On January 29, 2020, Plaintiff filed a Notice of Appeal of Judge Clark's decision granting summary judgment to Defendant. On February 12, 2020, Defendant filed a Notice of Cross-Appeal of Judge Clark's decision. This is Plaintiff's Opening Brief.

SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENTS

1. The Superior Court erred in finding that there was insufficient record evidence to allow a jury to conclude that Plaintiff's ex-Wife would have executed the pre-nuptial agreement if it had included the statutory waiver of additional disclosure language. Plaintiff contends that the record contains overwhelming circumstantial evidence to support the inference that Ms. Willoughby would have executed the couple's pre-nuptial agreement, even if the waiver language was included.

2. The Superior Court erred in determining that Plaintiff had not produced record evidence to support the inference that Plaintiff's ex-Wife would have executed the pre-nuptial agreement if it had included the statutory waiver of additional disclosure language, such that Plaintiff produced evidence to demonstrate that but for Defendant's failure to include the waiver language in the agreement, Plaintiff would not have sustained damages. Plaintiff contends that the record contains overwhelming circumstantial evidence to support the inference that Ms. Willoughby would have executed the couple's pre-nuptial agreement, even if the waiver language was included. This established a dispute of a genuine issue of material fact regarding the proximate cause of Plaintiff's damages. Furthermore, the Court assumed the role of the jury in weighing the strength and credibility of this circumstantial evidence and failed to consider such evidence in a light most favorable to the Plaintiff, the non-moving party. Finally, as Ms. Willoughby was identified as a potential trial witness in Plaintiff's Answers to Defendant's Interrogatories, the fact that she was not deposed during discovery, does not preclude Plaintiff from subpoenaing her to testify at trial.

3. The Superior Court erred by not adopting an increased risk of harm standard for transactional malpractice claims when transactional negligence left transaction vulnerable to legal challenge. Plaintiff contends that the fact that he was ultimately successful in the litigation arising over the enforceability of the pre-nuptial agreement, should not preclude liability with Defendant's underlying deviation from the applicable standard of care – in preparing that agreement – resulted in far more costly and complex litigation. This Court should adopt apply the same principal of increased risk of harm causation analysis – currently applied under Delaware law to medical malpractice – to attorney malpractice. Further, the Superior Court’s application of a strict “but for” causation analysis to the facts at hand, and to transactional malpractice claims in general, leaves an entire class of potentially aggrieved clients without recourse; namely, those who’s attorney prepared a contract which exposed them to an increased risk of harmful litigation regarding the contract’s enforceability.

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

Plaintiff's claims are predicated upon Defendant's preparation of a pre-nuptial agreement (the "Agreement") in January and February of 1997.<sup>1</sup> Thomas E. Gay, Esquire ("Attorney Gay") of Stumpf, Vickers & Sandy, P.A. represented Ms. Willoughby.<sup>2</sup> The Agreement did not include statutory waiver of additional disclosure language, as per 13 Del. C. § 326.<sup>3</sup> Nevertheless the Agreement was extremely one sided in favor of Plaintiff.<sup>4</sup> In fact, the Agreement was so lopsided in its terms that Attorney Gay had Ms. Willoughby sign a memorandum documenting that she was executing the Agreement against the advice of her counsel.<sup>5</sup>

Ms. Willoughby filed for divorce on March 4, 2015, and later moved to set aside the Agreement on July 2, 2015.<sup>6</sup> Ms. Willoughby was represented by Shawn Dougherty, Esquire ("Attorney Dougherty") of Weik, Nitsche & Dougherty and David C. Gagne, Esquire ("Attorney Gagne") and Achille C. Scache ("Attorney

---

<sup>1</sup> See A0003, A0005, A0007 – A0008 at ¶¶ 10, 16, 30-36.

<sup>2</sup> A0004 at ¶ 14.

<sup>3</sup> See, A0166 – A0167.

<sup>4</sup> See, A0120 at 82:5-15.

<sup>5</sup> See, A0120 at 83:4 – 85:18.

<sup>6</sup> A0005 at ¶¶ 19, 22.

Scache”) of Giordano, DelCollo, Werb & Gagne, LLC represented Plaintiff.<sup>7</sup> On July 2, 2015, Attorney Dougherty filed a Motion to Set Aside the Agreement (the “Motion”) arguing it was unconscionable and that it was involuntarily executed.<sup>8</sup> Ms. Willoughby’s motion to set aside the Agreement resulted in substantial litigation and discovery in the divorce action regarding its enforceability.<sup>9</sup>

On April 4, 2018, following extensive briefing and oral argument, The Hon. James G. McGiffin, Jr. (“Judge McGiffin”) issued an Order granting Ms. Willoughby’s Motion, concluding that the Agreement was unconscionable but that Ms. Willoughby had voluntarily executed the document, and rendered the Agreement unenforceable.<sup>10</sup> Following an interlocutory appeal, this Court reversed and remanded Judge McGiffin on February 28, 2019, thus significantly narrowing the scope of the damages in this matter to Plaintiff’s expenses needlessly spent litigating the motion to set aside the Agreement.<sup>11</sup>

On June 12, 2018, Plaintiff filed suit against Defendant alleging that Defendant deviated from the applicable standard of care by failing to include statutory disclosure waiver language in the Agreement, as per 13 Del. C. § 326,

---

<sup>7</sup> A0005 at ¶¶ 20-21.

<sup>8</sup> A0005 at ¶¶ 22-23.

<sup>9</sup> A0166- A0167.

<sup>10</sup> A0051, A0044.

<sup>11</sup> A0292.

thereby rendering the Agreement defective and subject to a vigorous challenge by Ms. Willoughby.<sup>12</sup> Plaintiff's expert, Judy M. Jones, Esquire ("Attorney Jones"), and lay witnesses provided deposition testimony that: (i) Defendant's failure to include the statutory waiver language in the Agreement was indeed a deviation from the appropriate standard of care;<sup>13</sup> and (ii) this deviation was the actual and proximate cause of Plaintiff's increased legal expenses associated with the litigation of the enforceability of the Agreement.<sup>14</sup> Attorney Jones and Attorney Gagne, both provided testimony, demonstrating that Plaintiff in fact would have received a much better result from the underlying transaction, had the Defendant included the statutory waiver language in the Agreement.

---

<sup>12</sup> A0007 at ¶ 33.

<sup>13</sup> A0166. ("Inclusion of such a written waiver within the prenuptial agreement itself is the accepted standard of care and the norm in the practice of drafting, negotiating and execution of prenuptial agreements in Delaware.") (emphasis added); A0125 at p. 102:23-103:8 ("Q. And again, is it your opinion within a reasonable degree of professional certainty based on your professional experience, that Mr. Ellis' failure to include the waiver language ... was a deviation from the applicable standard of care expected of a Delaware family lawyer? A. Yes, it was. It was a deviation.")

<sup>14</sup> A0106 at p. 27:20-28:20 ("Q. And it's your belief that Mr. Ellis' failure to include the waiver language you discuss on page six of your report caused Mr. Sherman to suffer damages. A. It is. Q. What were those damages? A. I would say the damages would be the increase in the attorney's fees for the length of the litigation and that he had to undergo, including the appellate process for the Supreme Court review. I think the expert witnesses that Mr. Sherman had to hire to come up with the values as to what certain property was at the time 20 years ago from when the agreement was being challenged. I think those are his damages. I think those could have and would have been greatly reduced, and not have been necessary if he had had a sentence waiving further disclosure."); A0185 at p. 40:5-8 ("Q. So about $310,000.00 were fees that were specifically related to litigating the prenuptial agreement enforceability? A. Fees and costs, yes sir.")

Attorney Jones explained in great detail how the waiver language would have dramatically changed the manner in which the litigation over the enforceability of the Agreement occurred. Attorney Jones' report – and testimony – explained that under Delaware law there are only two grounds or causes of action, under which a prenuptial agreement can be set aside: (1) “that an agreement was not entered into volutarily;” [and] (2) “that an agreement was unconscionable at the time it was executed.”<sup>15</sup> Attorney Jones explained that there are four distinct elements all of which must be proven to successfully set aside a pre-nuptial agreement based on unconscionability – and critically, that one of those elements is that the challenged agreement did not include a written disclosure waiver.<sup>16</sup>

Attorney Jones testified that if the waiver language was included in the Agreement, Ms. Willoughby would not have been able to successfully challenge the Agreement on unconscionability grounds, even concurring that the waiver is in effect a “silver bullet” to such a claim.<sup>17</sup> Attorney Jones also testified that Attorney Gay, Ms. Willoughby's attorney in preparing the Agreement, had her execute a “CYA” memorandum wherein she acknowledged in writing that she executed the

---

<sup>15</sup> A0164-A0165 at p. 4-5.

<sup>16</sup> A0165 at p. 5.

<sup>17</sup> See, A0121 p. 88:19-89:3 (“Q. It is your experience based on knowledge, research, speaking with other attorneys, whatever it may be in your professional experience, that if that waiver language is included, it doesn't matter if it's about further disclosure, disclosure at all, or the disclosure that was provided; if the waiver language is included, you can't prove that case? A. That's my opinion. Yes.”); and A0123.

Agreement, against the advice of counsel, because it was so unfavorable to her.<sup>18</sup>

Attorney Jones testified that this “CYA” memorandum was a complete defense to the other basis for challenging the Agreement, arguing it was not voluntarily signed, and that in fact Judge McGiffin, the trial judge, determined the same.<sup>19</sup>

In her testimony, Attorney Jones conceded that Ms. Willoughby would have moved to set aside the Agreement regardless, but if the waiver language had been included, Ms. Willoughby would only have been able to argue that she did not voluntarily enter into the Agreement.<sup>20</sup> Attorney Jones further opined that once Attorney Gay’s “CYA” memorandum was discovered, that is all that would be needed to defend against an involuntary execution claim.<sup>21</sup> Plaintiff’s domestic attorney, Attorney Gagne, similarly testified about how his approach to Ms. Willoughby’s challenge would have been dramatically different if the Agreement

---

<sup>18</sup> See, A0106 at p. 28:18-29:13.

<sup>19</sup> See, A0106 at p. 28:18-29:13.

<sup>20</sup> See, A0108-A0109 at p. 37:23-38:17 (“Q. So just to be clear, it’s your belief that even if that waiver language that you think should have been included was included, Ms. Dougherty [i.e. Ms. Willoughby’s attorney] would have challenged the validity of the prenuptial agreement? A. I think she probably would have. But I think had the waiver language been in there, she would have been limited to just the first of cause of action [i.e. voluntariness]”).

<sup>21</sup> See, A0108 at p. 36:19-22 (“I think once Tom Gay’s CYA letter was discovered, that’s sort of the smoking gun. I think it would have ended there.”); A0122 at p. 91:10-18 (“Q. It is also your opinion, your expert opinion Ms. Jones, that once the discovery of ... Tom Gay’s CYA letter occurred in the litigation of that hypothetical motion to set aside based only on voluntariness, that would have effectively killed that case? A. I think so. It would have for me.”).

had included the waiver language.<sup>22</sup> Attorney Gagne testified that he would not have had an associate assist him, except where appropriate to lower Plaintiff's costs and that he would not have hired any experts.<sup>23</sup> Further, Attorney Gagne testified that in this but for scenario, the sufficiency of Plaintiff's disclosures for the Agreement – the substantial issue in the litigation – would have been irrelevant and no litigation regarding it would have occurred.<sup>24</sup> Finally, Attorney Gagne testified that instead of the $310,000 actually charged to Plaintiff, had the waiver language been included in the Agreement and Ms. Willoughby still moved to set it aside on voluntariness it would have cost approximately $35,000 to $50,000 to litigate the case.<sup>25</sup>

---

<sup>22</sup> See, A0181 at p. 22:21-23:7 (“Q. So if we presume that the [waiver] language had been included in the prenuptial agreement, in September of 2015 when you received Mr. Gay’s memorandum, would you have been completely comfortable in defending against both voluntariness and unconscionability? A. Yes. Q. So would you agree your litigation strategy would have been fairly straightforward in that event? A. Yes.”).

<sup>23</sup> See, A0181 at p. 23:8-18.

<sup>24</sup> See, A0181-A0183 at p. 24:10-29:17.

<sup>25</sup> See, A0185-A0186 at p. 40:18-43:18.

ARGUMENT

I. THE SUPERIOR COURT ERRED IN FINDING THAT THERE WAS INSUFFICIENT RECORD EVIDENCE TO ALLOW A JURY TO CONCLUDE THAT PLAINTIFF’S EX-WIFE WOULD HAVE EXECUTED THE PRE-NUPTIAL AGREEMENT IF IT INCLUDED THE STATUTORY WAIVER OF ADDITIONAL DISCLOSURE LANGUAGE

A. Questions Presented

1. Did the Superior Court err in finding that there was insufficient record evidence to allow a jury to conclude that Plaintiff’s ex-Wife would have executed the pre-nuptial agreement if it had included the statutory waiver of additional disclosure language?<sup>26</sup>

B. Standard and Scope of Review

In Delaware, “[a] trial court's decision on a motion for summary judgment is subject to a de novo standard of review on appeal.”<sup>27</sup> A party is not entitled to summary judgment unless “there are no genuine issues of material fact,” such that the “moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”<sup>28</sup> When considering a motion for summary judgment, “[t]he Court must view all factual inferences in

---

<sup>26</sup> The argument that there was sufficient circumstantial evidence in the record to allow a jury to conclude the Ms. Willoughby would have executed the Agreement even if it had included the statutory waiver of additional disclosures language was raised and preserved at oral argument regarding Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment. See, A0609 at p. 11:1-4.

<sup>27</sup> AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., LLC v. Cirrus Indus., 871 A.2d 428, 433 (Del. 2005).

<sup>28</sup> Caraballo v. Delaware Dep’t of Corr., 2001 Del. Super. LEXIS, at *2 (Del. Super. March 22, 2001).

the light most favorable to the non-moving party.”<sup>29</sup> Summary judgment should be denied, “[i]f there is a reasonable indication that a material fact is in dispute or if it is desirable to inquire more thoroughly into the facts.”<sup>30</sup> Moreover, “[i]n evaluating the record on a motion for summary judgment, a trial judge is not permitted to weigh the evidence or resolve conflicts presented by pretrial discovery.”<sup>31</sup> Further, “[w]here the ultimate fact to be established concerns intent or other subjective reaction, summary judgment is ordinarily inappropriate.”<sup>32</sup> Finally, “[i]f the matter depends to any material extent upon a determination of credibility, summary judgment is inappropriate.”<sup>33</sup>

C. Merits

- i. The Superior Court Overlooked Substantial Circumstantial Evidence Supporting the Inference that Plaintiff’s Ex-Wife Would Have Executed the Pre-Nuptial Agreement, Had it Contained the Statutory Waiver of Additional Disclosure Language

In deciding to grant Defendant’s request for summary judgment, Judge Clark opined “[o]n balance, the record contains no evidence—direct or circumstantial—that permits a reasonable inference that Mr. Sherman’s ex-wife would have more

---

<sup>29</sup> Id.

<sup>30</sup> Id.

<sup>31</sup> Telxon Corp. v. Meyerson, 802 A.2d 257, 262 (Del. 2002).

<sup>32</sup> AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., LLC, 871 A.2d at 446.

<sup>33</sup> Cerberus Int’l, Ltd. v. Apollo Mgmt., L.P., 794 A.2d 1141, 1150 (Del. 2002) (emphasis added).

likely than not agreed to”<sup>34</sup> the inclusion of the statutory disclosure waiver language in the Agreement. Plaintiff respectfully submits that Judge Clark’s determination was in error. While it is true that virtually nothing – particularly a negative – can be proven with absolute certainty, the standard of proof in a civil matter is preponderance of evidence, not absolute certainty.

In fact there was significant circumstantial evidence in the record demonstrating that it is virtually all but certain that Ms. Willoughby would have executed that Agreement even if it included the waiver. For instance, Attorney Jones testified that the Agreement – even without the waiver language – was incredibly one sided in Plaintiff’s favor.<sup>35</sup> Ms. Willoughby waived all of her marital rights in the Agreement.<sup>36</sup> Ms. Willoughby also waived her right to claim an elective share of Plaintiff’s estate and waived her right to allimony.<sup>37</sup> Ms. Willoughby nonetheless executed the Agreement.

Recognizing the lopsided nature of Defendant’s first draft of the Agreement, Attorney Gay offered revisions, which were intended to give more rights to Ms.

---

<sup>34</sup> A0693.

<sup>35</sup> A0120 at p. 82:5-15.

<sup>36</sup> A0120 at p. 82:12-14.

<sup>37</sup> A0120 at p. 83:20-84:11.

Willoughby.<sup>38</sup> For instance, Attorney Gay proposed language which would have allowed Ms. Willoughby to receive allimony in the event of a divorce.<sup>39</sup> Attorney Gay also proposed a revision that would allow Ms. Willoughby to claim an elective share of Plaintiff's estate in the event of his death.<sup>40</sup> Attorney Gay also proposed that Plaintiff set up a retirement account for the exclusive benefit of Ms. Willoughby.<sup>41</sup> Plaintiff rejected each and every revision proposed by Attorney Gay, which would have made the Agreement more beneficial to Ms. Willoughby, and she nonetheless executed the Agreement.<sup>42</sup> The Agreement was so unfair to Ms. Willoughby that Attorney Gay had her execute a memorandum wherein she acknowledged that she executed the Agreement after being advised by her attorney in writing not to do so.<sup>43</sup>

Plaintiff submits that – considered together – this substantial circumstantial evidence supports a reasonable inference that Ms. Willoughby would have executed the Agreement if it included one additional clause containing waiver language. Plaintiff respectfully contends that Judge Clark's finding that there was

---

<sup>38</sup> See, A0120 at p. 82:18-85:18.

<sup>39</sup> See, A0120 at p. 83:4-83:14.

<sup>40</sup> See, A0120 at p. 83:20-84:4.

<sup>41</sup> See, A0120 at p. 84:5-7

<sup>42</sup> See, A0120 at p. 82:18-84:11.

<sup>43</sup> See, A0119-A0121 at p. 81:24-86:1.

no evidence in the record to support this inference is patently wrong. Moreover, what Ms. Willoughby would have done if the Agreement contained the statutory disclosure language, is a question best answered by her testimony at trial.

II. THE SUPERIOR COURT ERRED IN DETERMINING THAT PLAINTIFF DID NOT DEMONSTRATE A GENUINE ISSUE OF MATERIAL FACT REGARDING PROXIMATE CAUSE OF DAMAGES

A. Questions Presented

1. Did the Superior Court err in granting summary judgment, as a material factual dispute existed, regarding the question of whether Plaintiff's ex-Wife would have executed the pre-nuptial agreement, and as such a genuine issue of material fact existed regarding the issue of whether Defendant's failure to include the language in the agreement caused Plaintiff to incur increased litigation fees?<sup>44</sup>
2. Did the Superior Court err in granting summary judgment, as the question of whether or not Plaintiff's ex-Wife would have executed the pre-nuptial agreement requires the fact finder to determine the credibility of competing inferences?<sup>45</sup>

---

<sup>44</sup> The argument that there was sufficient circumstantial evidence in the record to allow a jury to conclude the Ms. Willoughby would have executed the Agreement even if it had included the statutory waiver of additional disclosures language was raised and preserved at oral argument regarding Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment. See, A0609 at p. 11:1-4. Plaintiff raised the causal connection between the failure to include the waiver in the Agreement and his increased attorneys' fees and costs in his Answering Brief and at oral argument. See, A0375-A0377.

<sup>45</sup> Plaintiff preserved the argument that it is the province of the jury to determine whether Ms. Willoughby would have executed the Agreement if it contained the additional disclosure waiver in his Answering Brief and at oral argument. See, A0375 at n. 35; A0643 at p. 45:9-13.

3. Did the Superior Court err in granting summary judgment, as Plaintiff can still call his ex-Wife to testify at trial?<sup>46</sup>

B. Standard and Scope of Review

In Delaware, “[a] trial court's decision on a motion for summary judgment is subject to a de novo standard of review on appeal.”<sup>47</sup> A party is not entitled to summary judgment unless “there are no genuine issues of material fact,” such that the “moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”<sup>48</sup> When considering a motion for summary judgment, “[t]he Court must view all factual inferences in the light most favorable to the non-moving party.”<sup>49</sup> Summary judgment should be denied, “[i]f there is a reasonable indication that a material fact is in dispute or if it is desirable to inquire more thoroughly into the facts.”<sup>50</sup> Moreover, “[i]n evaluating the record on a motion for summary judgment, a trial judge is not <sup>46</sup> Plaintiff’s counsel concedes that he did not specifically raise the issue of Ms. Willoughby testifying at trial, during a discussion at oral argument regarding the fact that Ms. Willoughby was not deposed. However, Plaintiff respectfully contends that the interests of justice would be best served in allowing Plaintiff to raise this point herein. First, Plaintiff did identify Ms. Willoughby as a potential trial witness in supplemental discovery responses. See, A0094-A0095. Furthermore there was a brief discussion at oral argument regarding Ms. Willoughby’s potential testimony. See, A0607-A0608 at pp. 9:14-10:10. Plaintiff’s counsel concedes he could have been more direct and respectfully requests the Court excuse this failing.

---

<sup>47</sup> AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., 871 A.2d at 433.

<sup>48</sup> Caraballo, 2001 Del. Super. LEXIS, at *2.

<sup>49</sup> Id.

<sup>50</sup> Id.

permitted to weigh the evidence or resolve conflicts presented by pretrial discovery.”<sup>51</sup> Further, “[w]here the ultimate fact to be established concerns intent or other subjective reaction, summary judgment is ordinarily inappropriate.”<sup>52</sup> Finally, “[i]f the matter depends to any material extent upon a determination of credibility, summary judgment is inappropriate.”<sup>53</sup>

To prove a claim of legal malpractice in Delaware, “the plaintiff must establish the following elements: a) the employment of the attorney; b) the attorney’s neglect of a professional obligation; and c) resulting loss.”<sup>54</sup> As in most jurisdictions, “it is well-established in Delaware that expert testimony is necessary to support a claim of legal malpractice”<sup>55</sup> Accordingly, “in order to sustain a claim of professional negligence against a Delaware attorney, plaintiff must establish the applicable standard of care through the presentation of expert testimony, a breach of that standard of care, and a causal link between the breach and the injury.”<sup>56</sup>

---

<sup>51</sup> Telxon Corp., 802 A.2d at 262.

<sup>52</sup> AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., LLC, 871 A.2d at 446.

<sup>53</sup> Cerberus Int’l, Ltd., 794 A.2d at 1150.

<sup>54</sup> Flowers v. Ramunno, 27 A.3d 551 (Table), 2011 Del. LEXIS 434, at *4 (Del. Aug. 16, 2011).

<sup>55</sup> Dickerson v. Murray, 2016 Del. Super. LEXIS 166, at *5 (Del. Super. Mar. 24, 2016).

<sup>56</sup> Middlebrook v. Ayres, 2004 Del. Super. LEXIS 179, at *19 (Del. Super. June 9, 2004).

C. Merits

- i. Plaintiff Produced Substantial Circumstantial Evidence Supporting the Inference that Plaintiff's Ex-Wife Would Have Executed the Pre-Nuptial Agreement, Had it Contained the Statutory Waiver of Additional Disclosure Language, Thus Establishing But For Causation of Damages, and Weighing that Evidence Required Making a Credibility Determination

As detailed in the previous section of Plaintiff's Opening Brief, the record below contained significant circumstantial evidence supporting the inference that Ms. Willoughby would have executed the Agreement, even if it included the statutory disclosure waiver language.<sup>57</sup> Plaintiff respectfully contends that this evidence, viewed in the light most favorable to him, presented a material issue of fact, which should have precluded summary judgment. As the Court stated in Robinson v. Foulkstone Med. Pavilion Condo. Ass'n "circumstantial evidence may lead to more than one possible inference" and "[a]fter considering all possible inferences, the factfinder must consider whether there is only one reasonable inference under the circumstances."<sup>58</sup>

---

<sup>57</sup> See, supra, notes 35 – 43 and accompanying text.

<sup>58</sup> See, e.g., Robinson v. Foulkstone Med. Pavilion Condo. Ass'n, 2018 Del. Super. LEXIS 398, *9 (Del. Super. Aug. 14, 2018) (denying defendant property owner's motion for summary judgment and noting plaintiff's expert's testimony "provided circumstantial evidence sufficient to create a genuine issue of material fact regarding a dangerous condition.") (emphasis in original); Keller v. Del-Homes, Inc., 1999 Del. Super. LEXIS 430, at *2-5 (Del. Super. March 12, 1999) (the Court denied defendants' motions for summary judgment after determining there was circumstantial evidence that defendants' had cut down trees on plaintiff's property and caused trash and debris to accumulate thereon, and noting, "the Court is not included to attempt to weigh and assess the respective probative values of the anticipated evidence."); Contra, Brown v. Gartside, 2004 Del. Super. LEXIS 83, at *1, 7-8 (Del. Super. March 5, 2004) (the Court properly

The underlying facts are substantially similar to those considered by the Court in Dickerson, which arose from faulty transactional legal advice. In that case, the plaintiff retained the defendants to prepare a promissory note for a loan provided to her grandson for the purchase of a property.<sup>59</sup> The defendants prepared the note but failed to advise plaintiff to mortgage her grandson's property – leaving the debt unsecured.<sup>60</sup> After making one payment the grandson defaulted.<sup>61</sup>

The defendants in Dickerson moved for summary judgment, arguing in part, that their negligence was not the proximate cause of the plaintiff's damages.<sup>62</sup> The Court denied the defendants' request and noted, “[w]hether [p]laintiff would have walked away from the deal had she been fully advised is a jury question.”<sup>63</sup> The Court also noted that defendants' request for summary judgment would require a determination regarding the credibility of whether or not the plaintiff would have walked away under the circumstances, and that “a judge does not make credibility granted summary judgment to defendant property owner, where plaintiff, who passed away before providing any kind of written or oral statement regarding circumstance sof alleged fall offered no evidence, documentation or testimonial, to support inference that defendant was negligent or that dangerous condition existed).

---

<sup>59</sup> Dickerson v. Murray, 2016 Del. Super. LEXIS 166, at *1-2 (Del. Super. Mar. 24, 2016).

<sup>60</sup> Id. at *1-4.

<sup>61</sup> Id. at *1-2.

<sup>62</sup> Id. at *9.

<sup>63</sup> Dickerson, 2016 Del. Super. LEXIS 166, at *12.

determinations at this stage of the litigation.”<sup>64</sup> Similarly, Plaintiff contends that weighing the circumstantial evidence that Ms. Willoughby would have executed the Agreement, if it contained the waiver language, against the inference that she would not have – requires a determination of credibility – thus precluding summary judgment.

Again, the best means of establishing Ms. Willoughby’s reaction to the hypothetical inclusion of statutory waiver language in the Agreement is through her testimony at trial. Plaintiff contends that the record includes enough circumstantial evidence that created an inference that she would have – such that it was “desirable to inquire more thoroughly into the facts” such that summary judgment was inappropriate.<sup>65</sup>

Testimony elicited from Attorney Jones indicates that had the Agreement contained the statutory disclosure waiver, the litigation over the Agreement’s enforceability would have been dramatically different.<sup>66</sup> For instance, Attorney Jones, having extensively reviewed the file of the litigation of the Agreement’s enforceability, testified that waiver language would have eliminated the need for Plaintiff to retain three experts and that Plaintiff’s attorneys had to devote substantial time and resources litigating unconscionability because of the absence

---

<sup>64</sup> Id.

<sup>65</sup> AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., LLC, 871 A.2d at 444.

<sup>66</sup> See, supra notes 14.

of the waiver in the Agreement.<sup>67</sup> Jones provided competent and compelling testimony that but for Ellis' failure to include the waiver in the Agreement, the litigation regarding its enforceability would have been much less involved and expensive.

Attorney Gagne similarly testified during his deposition. Attorney Gagne testified that the majority of the litigation was devoted to discovery and experts related to real estate valuation, as the Agreement misidentified Plaintiff's ownership interest in a 200 acre parcel of real estate.<sup>68</sup> Attorney Gagne testified that if the waiver language was included in the Agreement, the error in the disclosure of Plaintiff's ownership of that parcel would have been immaterial.<sup>69</sup> Finally, both Attorney Gagne and Attorney Jones testified that Plaintiff's legal expenses would have been significantly lowered had Defendant included the waiver language in the Agreement.<sup>70</sup>

Accordingly, Plaintiff has provided evidence to demonstrate that but for Defendant's failure to include the waiver language, he would not have incurred damages in the nature of significantly heightened legal fees.

---

<sup>67</sup> See, A0106 at p. 28:18-29:23.

<sup>68</sup> See, A0181 – A0183 at p. 24:10-29:17.

<sup>69</sup> See, A0183 at p. 29:12-17.

<sup>70</sup> See, supra note 14.

ii. Plaintiff May Still Call His Ex-Wife to Testify at Trial

As argued above, Plaintiff submits that the record contained substantial circumstantial evidence to support the inference that Ms. Willoughby would have executed the Agreement, even if it included waiver language. Plaintiff contends that he has presented sufficient evidence to warrant a trial in this matter, wherein the fact finder will be permitted to weigh competing inferences regarding this issue, such that summary judgment was inappropriate.<sup>71</sup>

Plaintiff notes the evidence the jury will consider will include the direct testimony of Ms. Willoughby. On July 11, 2019, Plaintiff served Supplemental Answers and Objections to Defendants' Interrogatories.<sup>72</sup> Interrogatory No. 31 asked Plaintiff to:

State the name, address and occupation of each person from whom You intend to elicit testimony for use in court, including without limitation, those You intend to call as a witness at trial in any capacity, other than solely as an expert witness, and as to each such person identified, summarize the involvement or role of the witness in the events or condition at issue and the substance of the testimony that You will elicit from the witness.<sup>73</sup>

---

<sup>71</sup> Contra, Stayton v. Clariant Corp., 2014 Del. LEXIS 1, at *5 (Del. Jan. 2, 2014) (noting, “[t]here is no issue for a trial unless there is sufficient evidence favoring the nonmoving party for a jury to return a verdict for that party.”) (quoting, Health Solutions Network v. Grigorov, 2011 Del. LEXIS 89, at *5 (Del. Feb. 9, 2011)).

<sup>72</sup> See, A0090 – A0097.

<sup>73</sup> A0094.

In response, Plaintiff answered that he “may call the following witnesses to testify” and then identified Ms. Willoughby and noted, “[Ms. Willoughby] has knowledge regarding the preparation and execution of the subject Anti-Nuptial Agreement.”<sup>74</sup>

By identifying Ms. Willoughby as a witness in response to Defendant’s discovery, Plaintiff preserved his right to call her as a witness at trial. Should the Court reverse and remand Judge Clark’s Order granting summary judgment to the Defendant, Plaintiff intends to issue a subpoena to Ms. Willoughby, pursuant to Super. Ct. Civ. R. 45, compelling her appearance at trial for the purpose of providing testimony. Plaintiff respectfully contends that Ms. Willoughby’s direct testimony can and should be heard by the jury, so that it can weigh her testimony consider it, along with the substantial circumstantial evidence already in the record.

---

<sup>74</sup> A0095.

III. THE SUPERIOR COURT ERRED IN NOT ADOPTING AN INCREASED RISK OF HARM STANDARD FOR CERTAIN TRANSACTIONAL MALPRACTICE CLAIMS

A. Questions Presented

1. Did the Superior Court err in not adopting an increased risk of harm standard for transactional legal malpractice claims, wherein the alleged negligence left the transaction vulnerable to a vigorous legal challenge, which resulted in damages, in the form of increased legal expenses?<sup>75</sup>

B. Standard and Scope of Review

In Delaware, “[a] trial court's decision on a motion for summary judgment is subject to a de novo standard of review on appeal.”<sup>76</sup> A party is not entitled to summary judgment unless “there are no genuine issues of material fact,” such that the “moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”<sup>77</sup> When considering a motion for summary judgment, “[t]he Court must view all factual inferences in the light most favorable to the non-moving party.”<sup>78</sup> Summary judgment should be denied, “[i]f there is a reasonable indication that a material fact is in dispute or if it

---

<sup>75</sup> Plaintiff argued for the application of the increased risk of harm standard at oral argument. See, A0639 at p.41:7-21.

<sup>76</sup> AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., 871 A.2d at 433.

<sup>77</sup> Caraballo, 2001 Del. Super. LEXIS, at *2.

<sup>78</sup> Id.

is desirable to inquire more thoroughly into the facts.”<sup>79</sup> Moreover, “[i]n evaluating the record on a motion for summary judgment, a trial judge is not permitted to weigh the evidence or resolve conflicts presented by pretrial discovery.”<sup>80</sup> Further, “[w]here the ultimate fact to be established concerns intent or other subjective reaction, summary judgment is ordinarily inappropriate.”<sup>81</sup> Finally, “[i]f the matter depends to any material extent upon a determination of credibility, summary judgment is inappropriate.”<sup>82</sup>

C. Merits

i. The Superior Court Erred By Not Adopting The Increased Risk of Harm Standard For Transactional Malpractice Claims When Transactional Negligence Left Transaction Vulnerable To Legal Challenge

In determining to grant Defendant’s request for summary judgment, Judge Clark utilized traditional strict but for causation analysis.<sup>83</sup> Judge Clark also reasoned that because Plaintiff did not produce sufficient evidence to demonstrate that Ms. Willoughby would have signed the Agreement if it contained a waiver provision, Plaintiff could not establish causation of his alleged damages.<sup>84</sup> As

---

<sup>79</sup> Id.

<sup>80</sup> Telxon Corp., 802 A.2d at 262.

<sup>81</sup> AeroGlobal Capital Mgmt., LLC, 871 A.2d at 446.

<sup>82</sup> Cerberus Int’l, Ltd., 794 A.2d at 1150.

<sup>83</sup> See, A0690.

<sup>84</sup> See, id.

detailed in the forgoing sections of Plaintiff's Opening Brief, Plaintiff respectfully contends he did provide evidence sufficient to establish this fact.

Plaintiff argued that Defendant's failure to include the statutory waiver provision in the Agreement left the Agreement vulnerable to a vigorous legal challenge by Ms. Willoughby and – as supported by the testimony of Attorney Jones and Attorney Gagne – this resulted in a substantial escalation of the litigation regarding the Agreement's enforceability, thus dramatically increasing Plaintiff's legal expenses. In effect, Plaintiff argued that the manner in which Defendant prepared the Agreement created an increased risk of future litigation – future litigation which in fact came to pass. Plaintiff respectfully contends that the unique circumstances presented by the facts of this case warrant the adoption of a lower increased risk of harm standard of analysis.

Other jurisdictions have adopted relaxed standards for causation analysis in the context of particular legal malpractice claims, recognizing the inherent difficulty that arises in analyzing the types of unique factual scenarios that can accompany malpractice claims. In Lieberman v. Employers Ins. Of Wausau, the Supreme Court of the State of New Jersey considered this issue in a legal malpractice case brought by the underlying defendant in a medical malpractice case.<sup>85</sup> In that case the plaintiff (underlying defendant) claimed his insurance appointed attorney had committed malpractice by settling the underlying claim without his express consent.<sup>86</sup> The Court noted that, “[s]everal factors suggest that plaintiff should not be restricted to the more or less conventional mode of trying a ‘suit within a suit’ to establish entitlement to damages.”<sup>87</sup> The Court therefore concluded that:

[I]t should be within the discretion of the trial judge as to the manner in which the plaintiff may proceed to prove his claim for damages and that the appropriate procedure should, if not otherwise agreed upon between the parties, be settled through pretrial proceedings. We need not here delineate in final detail what alternatives must be considered except to observe that they include the "suit within a suit" approach or any reasonable modification thereof. Another option, which may be apposite in this case in light of the duality of defendants, the factor of role reversal, and the passage of time, is to proceed through the use of expert testimony as to what as a matter of reasonable probability would have transpired at the original trial.<sup>88</sup>

Relying on the Supreme Court’s decision in Lieberman, Judge Kestin of the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, in a dissenting opinion argued <sup>87</sup> Id. at 426-27. (these factors included inter alia the passage of time and the fact that the plaintiff – being the underlying defendant – could “skew the proofs” and thus “the jury in the current case would not obtain an accurate evidential reflection of semblance of the original action.”).

---

<sup>85</sup> Lieberman v. Employers Ins. Of Wausau, 419 A.2d 417, 419 (N.J. 1980).

<sup>86</sup> Id. at 423.

<sup>88</sup> Id. at 427. (emphasis added). Plaintiff has argued throughout this matter that Attorney Jones’ expert opinion fairly depicts how the litigation over the Agreement’s enforceability would have differed if the Agreement contained the statutory waiver language. See, A0640 – A0642 at pp. 42:7 – 44:5. See also, A0166 – A0167; supra notes 6 – 14 and accompanying text.

for the application of an increased risk of harm standard for legal malpractice actions – as the Courts of New Jersey utilize for medical malpractice claims.<sup>89</sup> In Jerista, the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, affirmed the trial court’s granting of summary judgment to a defendant-attorney who was sued by his former client, who alleged his negligence caused him to lose an otherwise winnable premises liability action, when that suit was dismissed following discovery violations committed by the defendant-attorney.<sup>90</sup> In arguing for a lowered standard in his dissent, Judge Kestin opined:

In terms of damages, it should be no less difficult to calculate in a legal malpractice action than in a medical malpractice action, with appropriate regard for the uncertainties involved, the value of the loss claimants experienced by reason of the professional defendant's errors, omissions, and intentional disregard of professional standards<sup>91</sup>

In another nod to the opinion in Lieberman, the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, in Gautam v. De Luca, recognized that “the ‘suit within a suit’ rule may suffer from an undue rigidity.”<sup>92</sup> The Court opined that the requirement of proving the underlying action is unrealistic, noting “[t]he simple

---

<sup>89</sup> See, Jerista v. Murray, 842 A.2d 840, (N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. 2004) (reversed and remanded on other grounds in Jerista v. Murray, 883 A.2d 350 (N.J. 2005)).

<sup>90</sup> Id. at 842-43.

<sup>91</sup> Id. at 849.

<sup>92</sup> Gautam v. De Luca, 521 A.2d 1343, 1348 (N N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. 1987).

fact is that many, if not most, legal claims are not tried to a conclusion, but rather are amicably adjusted.”<sup>93</sup>

Some Courts have deviated from the traditional “case within a case” analysis in malpractice claims. For instance, in Price Waicukauski & Riley, LLC v. Murray, the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana – applying Indiana substantive law – determined that a plaintiff’s claims that the defendants’ negligence resulted in increased legal expenses, could survive summary judgment.<sup>94</sup> The Court so ruled even if the plaintiff could not prove he would have won the underlying lawsuit.<sup>95</sup>

In Nicolet Instrument Corp. v. Lindquist & Vennum, the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals – applying Wisconsin law – reversed and remanded the trial court’s granting of summary judgment to the defendants-attorneys in a legal malpractice claim.<sup>96</sup> In that case the Court considered a claim made by the seller of a business subsidiary to a new company, which included a building the seller had previously leased for the subsidiary.<sup>97</sup> Following the sale to the buyer-company, the seller remained liable for the lease of the building and subsequently paid

---

<sup>93</sup> Id.

<sup>94</sup> Price Waicukauski & Riley, LLC v. Murray, 47 F. Supp. 3d 810, 823, 828-29 (S.D. Ind. 2014).

<sup>95</sup> Id.

<sup>96</sup> Nicolet Instrument Corp. v. Lindquist & Vennum, 34 F.3d 453, 457 (7th Cir. 1994).

<sup>97</sup> Id. at 454.

millions in rent, it had intended to avoid.<sup>98</sup> The plaintiff-seller sued their attorneys for failing to ensure that the buying company assumed responsibility for the lease.<sup>99</sup> The trial court granted summary judgment finding it was “pure conjecture” that the buying company would have agreed to these terms.<sup>100</sup>

The Seventh Circuit noted that “[p]roof of causation is often difficult in legal malpractice cases” and that this is even more difficult in the context of transactional malpractice arising from a negotiated instrument.<sup>101</sup> The Court adopted a lower standard than strict but for causation and held that summary judgment was improper because the plaintiff’s burden was as follows:

But to withstand summary judgment Nicolet was not required to prove that but for the law firm's negligence it would have avoided the $ 2.6 million rental expense that it incurred as a result of its remaining on the Zeta lease with no promise of indemnity by AM. All it had to show was that a rational trier of fact, confronted with the evidence produced in the summary judgment phase of the litigation, could conclude that, yes, Nicolet had suffered some harm as a consequence of the law firm's negligence and could quantify that harm to a reasonable, which is not to say a high, degree of precision. This not very demanding standard was satisfied, when, as is required given the posture of the case the evidence is construed as favorably to Nicolet as the record will permit.<sup>102</sup>

---

<sup>98</sup> Id.

<sup>99</sup> Id.

<sup>100</sup> Nicolet Instrument Corp., 34 F.3d at 455.

<sup>101</sup> Id.

<sup>102</sup> Id. (internal citations omitted) (emphasis added). See also, Keywell Corp. v. Piper & Marbury, L.L.P., 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1445, at *17-20, 26-28 (W.D.N.Y. Feb. 11, 1999) (The Court in Keywell found it inappropriate to assent to the defendants-attorneys’ argument that the

In 1995, this Court, upon a request for the certification of questions of law by the U.S. District Court for the District of Delaware, adopted the increased risk of harm standard in medical malpractice claims.<sup>103</sup> Writing for the Court, the Honorable E. Norman Veasey (“Chief Justice Veasey”) noted “[a]s its name implies, the increased risk doctrine provides that a person may recover damages if the person’s risk of suffering a negative medical condition is increased because of medical malpractice.”<sup>104</sup> Analyzing a ruling by the Connecticut Supreme Court on the subject, Chief Justice Veasey noted “the plaintiff ‘should not be burdened with proving that the occurrence of a future event is more likely than not, when it is a present risk, rather than a future event for which she claims damages.’”<sup>105</sup> Chief Justice Veasey further noted:

The Court held that in a tort action, a plaintiff who has established a breach of duty that was a substantial factor in causing a present injury which has resulted in an increased risk of future harm is entitled to compensation to the extent that the future harm is likely to occur.<sup>106</sup> plaintiff company could not demonstrate conclusively at the summary judgment phase that the company would have secured a better deal had it been given needed environmental information, not provided as a result of defendants’ negligence).

---

<sup>103</sup> See, United States v. Anderson, 669 A.2d 73, 74, 79 (Del. 1995).

<sup>104</sup> Id. at 75 (quoting United States v. Cumberbatch, 647 A.2d 1098, 1100 n.3 (Del. Super. 1994)).

<sup>105</sup> Id. at 77 (quoting Petriello v. Kalman, 546 A.2d 474, 482-83 (Conn. 1990)).

<sup>106</sup> Id. (internal quotation marks omitted).

Chief Justice Veasey determined that, [t]his approach addresses concerns about speculative claims for future harm. The requirement of a preceding physical injury prohibits plaintiffs from claiming that exposure to toxic substances, for instance, has created an increased risk of harm not yet manifested in a physical disease.”<sup>107</sup> With these principals in mind, Chief Justice Veasey held that, “[c]ompensating a tort victim for an increase in risk which results from some harm caused by a tortfeasor fits comfortably within traditional damage calculation methods. Plaintiff’s life expectancy has been shortened because he has a higher risk of death from testicular cancer. Accordingly, he should be compensated.”<sup>108</sup> Finally, Chief Justice Veasey wisely noted that failing to adopt the increased risk of harm standard would fail “adequately to deter negligent conduct” by the professionals.<sup>109</sup>

Plaintiff respectfully submits that the Court should hold attorneys to the same standard under which physicians have been held since the Court’s decision in Anderson. Plaintiff has demonstrated through the testimony of his expert, Attorney Jones, that Defendant’s failure to include the statutory waiver language in the Agreement left it susceptible to challenge by Ms. Willoughby – an increased risk

---

<sup>107</sup> Anderson, 669 A.2d at 77.

<sup>108</sup> Id. at 78.

<sup>109</sup> Id. at 77.

of a future threat.<sup>110</sup> As was demonstrated in Plaintiff and Ms. Willoughby's divorce litigation, that threat came to pass when Ms. Willoughby moved, initially successfully, to set aside the Agreement on unconscionability grounds. Attorney Jones testified in her expert opinion that had the Agreement included a waiver, this could not have occurred. Finally, as both Attorney Jones and Attorney Gagne testified, Defendant's failure to include the provision in the Agreement did, in fact, cause Plaintiff to incur financial harm in the form of dramatically increased costs. As Chief Justice Veasey held to be the case for the plaintiff in Anderson, Plaintiff should be compensated for this harm.

---

<sup>110</sup> See, A0166 – A0167.

CONCLUSION

For all the forgoing reasons, Plaintiff below, Appellant herein, Dean Sherman respectfully requests that the the Superior Court's January 2, 2020 Opinion and Order granting Defendant, Stephen P. Ellis, Esquire's Motion for Summary Judgment should be reversed and the case remanded for trial.

Respectfully Submitted,

IPPOLITI LAW GROUP

/s/ Patrick K. Gibson

PATRICK K. GIBSON, ESQ.

DE. Supreme Court ID 6357

1225 N. King Street, Suite 900

Wilmington, DE 19801

Ph: (302) 428-1400

Fax: (302) 428-9664

Email: patrick@ippolitolawgroup.com

Dated: March 17, 2020

RATIONALE AND JUDGMENT OF THE TRIAL COURT

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE

DEAN SHERMAN, :
 :
 :
 :
 Plaintiff, :
 : C.A. No. K18C-06-009 JJC
 : In and for Kent County
 :
 v. :
 :
 :
 STEPHEN P. ELLIS, ESQUIRE, :
 :
 :
 :
 Defendant. :

OPINION

Submitted: November 22, 2019
Decided: January 2, 2020

Patrick K. Gibson, Esquire, Ippoliti Law Group, Wilmington, Delaware, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Colleen D. Shields, Esquire, Gary W. Lipkin, Esquire, & Alexandra D. Rogin, Esquire, Eckert Seamans Cherin & Mellott, LLC, Wilmington, Delaware, Attorneys for Defendant.

Clark, J.

Plaintiff Dean Sherman sues his former attorney, Stephen Ellis, Esquire, for legal malpractice. Prior to Mr. Sherman's 1997 marriage, Mr. Ellis drafted a premarital agreement (the "Agreement") designed to protect Mr. Sherman's assets. Mr. Sherman then presented the Agreement to his fiancé.<sup>1</sup> The Agreement waived her right, upon divorce, to receive alimony or to share in wealth accumulated over the course of their marriage. Her attorney advised her not to sign it but she nevertheless did.

During their divorce proceedings in 2015, Mr. Sherman's wife challenged the Agreement's enforceability in Family Court. The Family Court found it to be unconscionable and thus unenforceable. The Delaware Supreme Court, however, reversed the Family Court's decision. In the end, the Agreement successfully barred her challenges.

Notwithstanding Mr. Sherman's success after appeal, he now sues Mr. Ellis because he did not include a waiver of disclosure clause in the draft agreement. According to Mr. Sherman's expert, it would have been a "silver bullet" removing the incentive for his ex-wife to engage in protracted litigation. Mr. Sherman claims that this expanded litigation in turn expanded his costs and fees. He now seeks to recover those attorney and expert fees from Mr. Ellis.

Presently, Mr. Ellis seeks summary judgment in a motion that raises two principal issues. First, the motion requires the Court to evaluate the legal foundation for Mr. Sherman's expert's standard of care opinion. Second, with regard to proximate cause, the motion addresses a plaintiff's ability to recover for legal malpractice in drafting a premarital agreement that, in the end, successfully protected the plaintiff's assets. To evaluate the second issue, the Court must address whether the standard for proximate cause in transactional legal malpractice claims differs from the standard applied in litigation legal malpractice claims.

---

<sup>1</sup> Mr. Sherman's former spouse is not a party. The Court will refer to her as Mr. Sherman's fiancé, wife, or ex-wife as did the Delaware Supreme Court when it assigned her a pseudonym in the underlying action. See Silverman v. Silverman, 206 A.3d 825 (Del. 2019) (assigning pseudonyms and general titles to the parties).

For the reasons that follow, genuine issues of material fact remain regarding the applicable standard of care and whether Mr. Ellis breached that standard. However, in this case, there is insufficient evidence of record to support an inference that Mr. Sherman's ex-wife would have agreed to include this "silver bullet" term in the Agreement. In addressing an issue of first impression, the same "but for" proximate cause limitation that applies in litigation malpractice actions must apply in transactional legal malpractice actions. When applying that standard, because record evidence does not support an inference that Mr. Sherman's ex-wife would have likely accepted the term, the trier of fact would be forced to speculate regarding whether Mr. Ellis's alleged negligence proximately caused Mr. Sherman harm. For that reason, Mr. Ellis's motion for summary judgment must be GRANTED.

FACTS AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

The recited facts are those of record when viewed in the light most favorable to Mr. Sherman, the non-movant. In 1997, Mr. Sherman retained Mr. Ellis to negotiate and draft the Agreement prior to his marriage. The draft included provisions designed to protect Mr. Sherman's assets in the event of a divorce. It also included a mutual waiver of alimony. Finally, it included a clause recognizing that both parties had fully disclosed their premarital assets.<sup>2</sup> The proposed agreement, <sup>2</sup> Pl. Response, Ex. A., Ex. 1, "Ante-Nuptial Agreement" at 3 (providing "[t]he parties hereby acknowledge that each of them has made a full disclosure to the other of all property owned or otherwise held by each respective party on Exhibits 'A' and 'B' attached hereto").

---

however, did not contain a waiver of the parties' obligations to disclose assets and obligations "beyond the disclosure provided."<sup>3</sup>

Before his fiancé signed the Agreement, she consulted with an attorney. Her attorney first asked Mr. Sherman to revise the proposed agreement to secure her future financial security. Mr. Sherman rejected those requests with the exception of one minor issue. His fiancé then met with her attorney to review the Agreement. He told her that it was one-sided and that she should not sign it. Notwithstanding this advice, she executed it. When doing so, she acknowledged in writing that her attorney had advised her not to. The two then married.

In 2015, Mr. Sherman's wife filed for divorce and moved to set aside the Agreement. At that point, Mr. Sherman's assets exceeded twelve million dollars and his annual income exceeded one million dollars. In contrast, she had no independent income or separate assets. In her motion to set aside the Agreement, she argued that it was unenforceable because she did not execute it voluntarily.<sup>4</sup> She also argued that the Agreement was unconscionable because (1) she was not provided a fair and reasonable disclosure of Mr. Sherman's property, and (2) because she "did not voluntarily and expressly waive in writing any right to that disclosure."<sup>5</sup>

Prior to the parties' execution of the Agreement in 1997, Mr. Sherman had disclosed in writing his then four million dollars in assets.<sup>6</sup> The disclosure, however, contained errors. Namely, it omitted that he owned a Ford Explorer (though his fiancé had nearly exclusive use of it prior to the disclosure) as well as a three thousand dollar life insurance policy. It also inaccurately described his one hundred <sup>3</sup> See 13 Del. C. § 326(a)(2)b (permitting a waiver of disclosures beyond those provided).

---

<sup>4</sup> See id. at § 326(a)(1) (providing a premarital agreement is unenforceable if not executed voluntarily).

<sup>5</sup> Pl. Response, Ex. A, Ex. 3, "Motion to Set Aside Ante-Nuptial Agreement," at ¶ 5.

<sup>6</sup> Pl. Response, Ex. A, Ex. 1 at 7.

percent interest in a two hundred acre property as a fifty percent interest.<sup>7</sup> In the Family Court property division litigation, after discovery, briefing, and oral argument, that court held the Agreement to be unconscionable. Because of the disclosure errors, it also held that Mr. Sherman's disclosure of assets and liabilities was not fair and reasonable.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Sherman then filed an interlocutory appeal to the Delaware Supreme Court. With that appeal pending, Mr. Sherman filed the current legal malpractice suit against Mr. Ellis. The then legal backdrop to the malpractice case included only the adverse Family Court finding, which at that point was on appeal.

After Mr. Sherman filed suit, the Delaware Supreme Court reversed the Family Court's decision.<sup>9</sup> When doing so, it confirmed that Mr. Sherman's ex-wife had voluntarily executed the Agreement<sup>10</sup> and that Mr. Sherman's disclosure of his property and financial obligations was fair and reasonable.<sup>11</sup> As a result, the Supreme Court held it to be immaterial whether or not the Agreement was unconscionable.<sup>12</sup> It held the Agreement to be enforceable.<sup>13</sup>

Nevertheless, Mr. Sherman continues to prosecute his legal malpractice claim against Mr. Ellis. In doing so, he seeks to recover significant attorneys' fees that he alleges he incurred while litigating the unconscionability of the Agreement in Family Court and on appeal. His claim centers on Mr. Ellis's allegedly negligent failure to

---

<sup>7</sup> Id. See also Silverman v. Silverman, 206 A.3d 825, 833 (Del. 2019) (summarizing the errors in the disclosures).

<sup>8</sup> Sherman v. Sherman, No. CS15-01396, 2018 (Del. Fam. Apr. 4, 2018).

<sup>9</sup> Silverman, 206 A.3d at 834.

<sup>10</sup> Id. at 829 (explaining that "[t]he parties have accepted the Family Court's ruling that Wife voluntarily entered into the premarital agreement. Thus, voluntariness is no longer at issue.").

<sup>11</sup> Id. at 833–34.

<sup>12</sup> Id. at 834.

<sup>13</sup> Id.

include a single clause or sentence in the Agreement—a waiver of disclosures term authorized by Delaware’s Premarital Agreement Act (the “Act”).<sup>14</sup>

The Act recognizes that a clause in a premarital agreement that waives further disclosure of assets or financial obligations has a direct bearing on the enforceability of a premarital agreement.<sup>15</sup> While the parties dispute the effect of this portion of the Act, there is no dispute that the Agreement contained no waiver of disclosure provision.

In the present suit, Mr. Sherman identified Judy Jones, Esquire, as his expert witness. In her report and deposition testimony, Ms. Jones opines that including the waiver provision would by itself have precluded any claim that the Agreement was unconscionable. As a result, she further opines that the standard of care for a domestic attorney as of 1997 required an attorney to include this waiver provision in the Agreement. Mr. Ellis’s expert counters that the standard of care did not require Mr. Ellis to include such a provision.

Apart from the standard of care issue, evidence of record relevant to proximate cause of harm is limited to three sources. First, Mr. Sherman’s litigation attorney, David Gagne, Esquire, testified in his deposition that Mr. Sherman incurred additional fees and costs because Mr. Ellis did not include the provision in the Agreement. Specifically, Mr. Gagne testified as a fact witness that because Mr. Ellis did not include this language, Mr. Sherman had to hire two experts to address property values that would have otherwise been unnecessary.<sup>16</sup> Those expert fees were approximately $38,000. Mr. Gagne also estimated that $285,000 of a total of $310,000 in attorneys’ fees that he charged were necessary only because Mr. Ellis

---

<sup>14</sup> See 13 Del. C. §§ 321–28.

<sup>15</sup> See 13 Del. C. § 326.

<sup>16</sup> Mr. Ellis also filed a motion in limine to exclude Mr. Gagne’s testimony to the extent that it includes expert opinions. The Court need not decide that motion for purposes of this decision.

did not include the disputed provision in the Agreement. Second, Ms. Jones offers her expert opinion that Mr. Ellis's failure to include this term proximately caused the increased costs and fees identified by Mr. Gagne. Third, Mr. Sherman argues that his ex-wife's agreement to what were otherwise draconian terms in a one-sided Agreement circumstantially supports a reasonable inference that she would have agreed to anything he asked, including the waiver of disclosure provision.

Notwithstanding that his ex-wife agreed to other one-sided terms, there is no evidence of record addressing her impressions regarding a waiver of disclosure provision or her willingness to agree to one. Namely, there is no direct evidence from her or the then-attorney that bears upon what other terms she may have agreed to. While she agreed to the vast majority, but not all of the terms proposed in the draft agreement, Mr. Sherman did not depose her or her then-attorney regarding how she would have reacted to the provision at issue. Likewise, there is no correspondence, documentary evidence, or circumstantial evidence demonstrating her propensity to agree to that specific provision.

Mr. Ellis now moves for summary judgment. He has also filed a motion in limine to exclude Ms. Jones's expert opinions regarding standard of care and proximate cause of damages. Because Ms. Jones offers opinions regarding each element of Mr. Sherman's malpractice claim, the foundation for her opinions must be addressed when deciding Mr. Ellis's motion for summary judgment.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

Mr. Ellis raises three arguments in support of his motion. First, he argues that there is no genuine issue of material fact regarding the standard of care. In support of this argument, he relies upon his expert's opinion that the standard of care did not require the waiver language to be included in the Agreement. Furthermore, he asks the Court to disregard Ms. Jones's expert opinion because she allegedly misinterprets a provision in the Act that anchors her standard of care opinion. Because she misinterprets the statute, he argues that her opinion has no foundation and should be rejected for purposes of summary judgment.

Second, he argues that because the Agreement survived a legal challenge and protected Mr. Sherman's assets, Mr. Sherman's claim fails as a matter of law. He concedes the absence of mandatory authority or in-State persuasive authority regarding transactional malpractice claims. Rather, Mr. Ellis cites other states' authority holding that a legal malpractice plaintiff must demonstrate that, but for the defendant's conduct, he or she would have obtained a more favorable result than the one obtained. According to Mr. Ellis, applying the same "case within a case" approach used by many courts in litigation malpractice actions, mandates summary judgment in this case.

Third, Mr. Ellis argues that Mr. Sherman's claim is "fatally speculative."<sup>17</sup> He lists six assumptions that a jury would need to speculate about before it could find proximate cause of harm. Namely, he argues that Mr. Sherman's claim requires speculation regarding the following: (1) Mr. Sherman's former wife would have accepted the waiver of disclosure language if Mr. Ellis had proposed it; (2) Mr. Ellis never, in fact, proposed the language; (3) if he included the language in the Agreement, she would not have challenged the Agreement anyway; (4) the litigation expenses would have been less had he included the waiver of disclosure language; (5) the Family Court would have ruled differently if the waiver language was included; and (6) Mr. Sherman's ex-wife, as opposed to Mr. Sherman, would not have appealed if she had lost in Family Court.<sup>18</sup> On balance, he argues that because there is no evidence regarding Mr. Sherman's ex-wife's willingness to have agreed to this pivotal term or her resolve to continue litigating under various scenarios, proximate cause of harm to Mr. Sherman is speculative.

---

<sup>17</sup> Def. Ellis Opening Br. at 10.

<sup>18</sup> Id. at 5.

In response, Mr. Sherman argues that the evidence of record creates issues of material fact precluding summary judgment. Namely, he argues that the conflicting deposition testimonies of his and Mr. Ellis's expert witnesses create a jury question as to the appropriate standard of care. Mr. Sherman also argues that Ms. Jones's interpretation of the Act is correct as a matter of law. Finally, Mr. Sherman urges the Court to apply a relaxed approach when evaluating proximate cause of damages. He argues that the relationship of damages to the negligence alleged is not speculative when applying this relaxed standard.

SUMMARY JUDGMENT STANDARD

Summary judgment is appropriate only if there is no genuine issue of material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.<sup>19</sup> The Court must view the evidence in the light most favorable to the non-moving party.<sup>20</sup> The burden of proof is initially on the moving party.<sup>21</sup> However, if the movant meets his or her initial burden, then the burden shifts to the non-moving party to demonstrate the existence of material issues of fact.<sup>22</sup> The non-movant's evidence of material facts in dispute must be sufficient to withstand a motion for judgment as a matter of law and sufficient to support the verdict of a reasonable jury.<sup>23</sup>

---

<sup>19</sup> Super. Ct. Civ. R. 56(c); Moore v. Sizemore, 405 A.2d 679, 680 (Del. 1979).

<sup>20</sup> Brozaka v. Olson, 668 A.2d 1355, 1364 (Del. 1995).

<sup>21</sup> Super. Ct. Civ. R. 56(e); Moore, 405 A.2d at 680 (Del. 1979).

<sup>22</sup> Moore, 405 A.2d at 681 (citing Hurt v. Goleburn, 330 A.2d 134 (Del. 1974)).

<sup>23</sup> Lum v. Anderson, 2004 WL 772074, at *2 (Del. Super. Mar. 10, 2004).

ANALYSIS

The Court must first determine whether there is a genuine issue of material fact regarding the standard of care applicable to Mr. Ellis. Because (1) expert testimony regarding this issue is necessary, and (2) Mr. Sherman’s expert relies upon her interpretation of the Act to support her opinion, the Court must determine if the Act supports her position. Next, the Court must address whether Mr. Sherman states a claim when the Agreement ultimately protected his assets. In other words, is there any legally recognizable harm when the Agreement fulfilled its primary purpose, although through a more circuitous route? Finally, the Court must address whether the evidence of record, when examined in the light most favorable to Mr. Sherman, demonstrates a genuine issue of material fact regarding proximate cause.

The record demonstrates a genuine issue of material fact regarding the applicable standard of care and whether Mr. Ellis breached it.

Central to the Court’s decision regarding the standard of care is Mr. Ellis’s motion in limine to exclude Ms. Jones’s opinion regarding the applicable standard of care.<sup>24</sup> Expert testimony is required for a plaintiff to establish the standard of care in a legal malpractice case. As to the standard of care, the parties offer competing expert opinions. Ms. Jones’s relevant opinion includes that Mr. Ellis “acted negligently and breached the applicable standard of care for a Delaware lawyer when <sup>24</sup> Neither Mr. Ellis nor Mr. Sherman couched their submissions in terms of a Daubert challenge. Foundational requirements are an aspect of a Daubert review. See Perry v. Berkley, 996 A.2d 1262, 1267 (Del. 2010) (explaining the Delaware Supreme Court “has adopted the United States Supreme Court holding in Daubert [v. Merrell Dow Pharm., Inc.], 509 U.S. 579, 593–95 (1993), which requires that an expert’s opinion be based upon a proper factual foundation and sound methodology to be admissible, as the correct interpretation of D.R.E. 702”). Because the parties proceeded immediately to their contrary arguments regarding the proper interpretation of the Act and whether Ms. Jones’s interpretation provides an adequate foundation for her opinion, the Court will focus only on that aspect of the Daubert requirements.

---

he failed to include in the [Agreement] a written waiver of further disclosure of property or financial obligations as permitted by 13 Del. C. § 326(a)(2)[b].”<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Ellis argues that because Ms. Jones incorrectly interprets the cited statute, her opinion deserves no weight and need not be accepted for summary judgment purposes. Mr. Sherman counters that had Mr. Ellis included one sentence in the Agreement, it would have significantly minimized Mr. Sherman’s attorney fees and expert costs.

The parties agree that the standard of care issue centers on their contrary interpretations of a provision in Delaware’s version<sup>26</sup> of the Uniform Premarital Agreement Act (the “UPAA”). The provision of the Act relevant to this dispute is Section 326. In relevant part, it provides:

- (a) A premarital agreement is not enforceable if the party against whom enforcement is sought proves that:
  - (1) Such party did not execute the agreement voluntarily; or
  - (2) The agreement was unconscionable when it was executed and, before execution of the agreement, that party;
    - a. Was not provided a fair and reasonable disclosure of the property or financial obligations of the other party;
    - b. Did not voluntarily and expressly waive, in writing, any right to disclosure of the property or financial obligations of the other party beyond the disclosure provided; and
    - c. Did not have, or reasonably could not have had, an adequate knowledge of the property or financial obligations of the other party.<sup>27</sup>

In paragraphs (1) and (2) of Subsection 326(a) of the Act, the General Assembly provided two independent bases to challenge the enforceability of a

---

<sup>25</sup> Pl. Response, Ex. C, at 7.

<sup>26</sup> See 13 Del. C. §§ 321–28 (where the General Assembly enacted Delaware’s version of the UPAA).

<sup>27</sup> 13 Del. C. § 326.

premarital agreement: involuntariness in execution or unconscionability. In the underlying litigation, Mr. Sherman’s ex-wife challenged the Agreement based upon both.

With regard to unconscionability, Ms. Jones opines that had Mr. Ellis included a provision mirroring the language in subparagraph (a)(2)b, it would have acted as a “silver bullet” to any challenge to the Agreement based upon unconscionability. Mr. Sherman provided a written disclosure of his property and obligations as required by subparagraph (a)(2)a, and the Supreme Court held it to be fair and reasonable. However, the Agreement included no waiver as contemplated in subparagraph (a)(2)b. That, according to Mr. Sherman’s theory of the case, would have limited the arguments in Family Court, and later in the Delaware Supreme Court, to whether his former wife executed the Agreement voluntarily. That limited scope, in turn, Mr. Sherman argues, would have prevented the need to litigate the highly factual issue of the fairness and reasonableness of the disclosure as referenced in subparagraph (a)(2)a.

Mr. Ellis counters that there is no meaningful way to interpret subparagraphs (a)(2)a and (a)(2)b to provide any guidance of value to an agreement drafter. He further argues that regardless of whether he included (a)(2)b’s waiver of disclosure language in the Agreement, the parties would have still needed to litigate the issue presented under (a)(2)a — that is, whether the initial disclosure was fair and reasonable.

Mr. Ellis reasonably argues that the interrelationship of these two provisions is unclear. They seem to contradict each other to a certain extent. Namely, the statute requires that there be a “fair and reasonable disclosure” on one hand, while also permitting a written waiver of disclosure on the other hand. The only qualifying language in the Act regarding the nature of the waiver is that it is effective “beyond the disclosure provided.” The Act does not define that phrase. It is unclear whether a correction to the first disclosure would qualify as one being “beyond the disclosure provided.” It is also unclear regarding whether a “disclosure beyond the disclosure provided” could obviate the need for a party to provide a fair and equitable disclosure in the first instance. At oral argument, neither party provided the Court with authority addressing the interrelationship of the two provisions.

In written supplements, both parties provided contrary persuasive authority supporting contrary readings of the UPAA.<sup>28</sup> The Court’s overriding goal in statutory construction must be to implement the General Assembly’s intent.<sup>29</sup> When doing so, it must first look to the plain language of the statute.<sup>30</sup> Here, in the underlying litigation, the Delaware Supreme Court addressed the statute’s structure as follows:

to render the premarital agreement unenforceable under the statute [based upon unconscionability], the spouse contesting enforcement must prove that the agreement is unconscionable and prove three other grounds – lack of fair and reasonable disclosure of the other spouse’s property or financial obligations, non-waiver, and lack of adequate knowledge of [the other spouse’s] property and financial obligations.<sup>31</sup>

In this matter’s underlying litigation, the Supreme Court did not expressly address the effect of failing to include a waiver of disclosure provision. Nor was it necessary for the Court to define “non-waiver” in the passage quoted above.

---

<sup>28</sup> Mr. Ellis offers a Kansas Supreme Court decision interpreting the provision in the UPAA to refer to “a waiver of any future disclosures, and not to a waiver of any and all disclosures made in the past.” Davis v. Miller, 7 P.3d 1223, 1229–30 (Kan. 2000) (emphasis added). Mr. Ellis also cites a Georgia appeals court decision holding that the UPAA does not provide that the waiver of disclosure provisions is a “silver bullet.” Kwon v. Kwon, 775 S.E.2d 611, 615–16 (Ga. App. Ct. 2015). In response, Mr. Sherman cites an Illinois appellate court decision, In re Marriage of Solano, 124 N.E. 3d 1097 (Ill. App. Ct. 2019). In that decision, the Illinois court held that the waiver of disclosure provision in the UPAA is effective as to all disclosures, past and present. Id. at 1111.

<sup>29</sup> Zambrana v. State, 118 A.3d 773, 775–76 (Del. 2015).

<sup>30</sup> Friends of H. Fletcher Brown Mansion v. City of Wilmington, 34 A.3d 1055, 1059 (Del. 2011) (quoting Caminetti v. United States, 242 U.S. 470, 485, (1917)).

<sup>31</sup> Silverman 206 A.2d at 832–33 (emphasis added).

Nevertheless, its statutory interpretation of Subsection 326(a) controls. When applying this interpretation, it follows that whatever further disclosures “beyond the disclosure provided” are, if the premarital agreement includes language waiving such a disclosure, then it is impossible for the challenging party to invalidate a premarital agreement based upon unconscionability.

Mr. Ellis relies upon the rule of statutory construction that statutes should not be read to render their provisions meaningless.<sup>32</sup> In this regard, he argues that the two subparagraphs when read in pari materia, cannot be reconciled. Regardless of the difficulty in interpreting and applying the two provisions, the Act’s plain language must control. Here, the policy and rationale behind including such a “silver bullet” is for the General Assembly to decide, not the Court. By including subparagraph (a)(2)b in the Act, the General Assembly has permitted any party who includes a waiver of disclosure provision in a premarital agreement to in all cases defeat a challenge to the Agreement based upon alleged unconscionability. As the Delaware Supreme Court recognized in the underlying case, “[i]t may be time to take another look at Delaware’s premarital agreement law . . .”<sup>33</sup> When observing this, the Supreme Court based this recommendation, in part, upon the circumstances of this case (in the underlying litigation) and, in part, upon other states’ decisions to adjust the UPAA based upon their experiences.<sup>34</sup>

On balance, given the Delaware Supreme Court’s guidance in Silverman, the plain language of the statute, and persuasive authority interpreting the UPAA consistently with Ms. Jones’s interpretation, there is an adequate foundation for Ms. Jones’s interpretation. As a result, in total, the record includes competing opinions <sup>32</sup> See 1A Sutherland Statutory Construction § 21:1 (7th ed.) (explaining that [c]ourts should construe a statute, if possible, so no term is rendered superfluous or meaningless”).

---

<sup>33</sup> Silverman, 206 A.3d at 834, n. 46.

<sup>34</sup> Id.

regarding the necessary standard of care that applied in 1997 to an attorney drafting a premarital agreement designed to protect a client's assets.<sup>35</sup> The opposing experts evaluated Mr. Ellis's performance in light of the applicable standards of care that they described.<sup>36</sup> These competing opinions create issues of fact regarding the applicable standard and whether Mr. Ellis breached it.<sup>37</sup> As a result, summary judgment is inappropriate on those bases.

Proximate cause in a transactional legal malpractice claim must be evaluated under the same traditional principals of tort law that apply to litigation malpractice claims.

In Delaware, the elements of a legal malpractice claim include “(1) the employment of the attorney; (2) the attorney's neglect of a reasonable duty; and (3) the fact that such negligence resulted in and was the proximate cause of loss to the

---

<sup>35</sup> Delaware adopted the Act the year prior, in 1996. 70 Del. Laws ch. 462, § 2 (1996).

Compare also Pl. Response, Ex. D “Deposition of Judy M. Jones,” at 47 providing:

Q: Any time an attorney, in your opinion represents a spouse seeking to protect his or her assets in drafting a prenuptial agreement, is it your belief that any time that they did not suggest including that waiver language, they are committing malpractice to their client?

A: Probably yes.

with Pl. Response, Ex. E “Deposition of Kathryn Laffey,” at 55 providing:

Q: So you don't believe the standard of care of the Delaware family lawyer preparing a prenuptial agreement requires this inclusion of this disclosure waiver language?

A: Certainly not in 1997.

<sup>36</sup> Compare Pl. Response, Ex. D “Deposition of Judy M. Jones,” at 102.

Q: And again, is it your opinion within a reasonable degree of professional certainty based on your professional experience, that Mr. Ellis' failure to include the waiver language . . . was a deviation from the applicable standard of care expected of a Delaware family lawyer?

A: Yes, it was. It was a deviation.

with Pl. Response, Ex. E “Deposition of Kathryn Laffey,” at 50.

Q: Do you believe that Stephen Ellis deviated from the applicable standard of care in the drafting of this document?

A: No.

<sup>37</sup> See Streevy v. Roberts, 2007 Del. Super. LEXIS 2634 (Del. Super. Mar. 21, 2007) (explaining that “competing expert testimony is a classic issue of fact for the jury”).

client.”<sup>38</sup> Often, legal malpractice claims arise out of an attorney’s conduct during the course of litigation. In those circumstances, the plaintiff must “demonstrate that the underlying action would have been successful but for the attorney’s negligence.”<sup>39</sup>

In the litigation context, the general rule requires analyzing a “case within a case.” Namely, a legal malpractice plaintiff cannot succeed in a claim unless he or she can demonstrate that but for the defendant’s negligence in a litigated case, the plaintiff would have won.<sup>40</sup> While Delaware case law has not used the specific “case within a case” nomenclature, Delaware law aligns directly with that general approach in litigation malpractice cases. Namely, in Flowers v. Ramunno,<sup>41</sup> the Delaware Supreme Court articulated the causation standard for such a claim. In that decision, the Court required the plaintiff to “demonstrate that the underlying action would have been successful but for the attorney’s negligence.”<sup>42</sup>

Other legal malpractice actions, however, stem from attorney representations in transactions. Legal malpractice actions in the transactional context often do not look back on the success or failure of litigation, but involve evaluating an attorney’s actions that, at the time, looked forward toward a future deal, settlement, or the prevention of litigation.

Distilling a general rule for transactional malpractice cases has caused more uncertainty than in the binary, win versus lose, litigation setting. Transactional legal malpractice cases may arise from an attorney’s drafting of a release, or as in this case, a premarital agreement. In such transactional representation claims, some of those cases follow a loss to the client in litigation. Such cases fit more easily within

---

<sup>38</sup> Weaver v. Lukoff, 511 A.2d 1044, 1986 WL 17121, at *1 (Del. July 1, 1986) (TABLE).

<sup>39</sup> Flowers v. Ramunno, 27 A.3d 551, 2011 WL 3592966 at *2 (Del. Aug. 16, 2011) (TABLE).

<sup>40</sup> Id.

<sup>41</sup> Id.

<sup>42</sup> Id. (emphasis added).

the general rule for causation used in litigation malpractice. At some point, there was often a poor result in an underlying suit.

Other transactional malpractice cases, however, stem from lost profits, a disappointing settlement or sale price, or a lost benefit of the bargain. For instance, they may include claims that an attorney's malpractice caused lost profits in a deal that the parties did not consummate, or did so under less favorable terms than were possible. These claims may also, inter alia, involve lost net profit because an attorney either negligently prepared documents or negligently represented a party in negotiations. In those transactional malpractice cases, the success of an "underlying action" cannot be gauged in binary terms such as winning or losing.

To date, the Delaware Supreme Court has not addressed the standard for proximate cause in transactional malpractice claims.<sup>43</sup> A number of other jurisdictions have examined the issue and align in two camps.<sup>44</sup> Some jurisdictions continue to use a "case within a case" framework while modifying its application by applying a "but for" causation requirement in the transactional context. On the other hand, some courts provide for a more relaxed causation approach in transactional legal malpractice cases due to the number of variables involved in a successful transaction. Mr. Sherman advocates this relaxed approach and equates it to a loss of chance type action. He argues that there is a cognizable malpractice claim if an attorney's actions merely resulted in a loss of chance to avoid excess litigation.

---

<sup>43</sup> But see Dickerson v. Murray, 2016 WL 1613286 at *4 (Del. Super. Mar. 24, 2016) (relying upon a decision of the Court of Appeals of Ohio to explain application of the "walk away" scenario in legal malpractice claims in a manner that seems to relax the standard for proximate cause without articulating the standard).

<sup>44</sup> See George S. Mahaffey Jr., CAUSE-IN-FACT AND THE PLAINTIFF'S BURDEN OF PROOF WITH REGARD TO CAUSATION AND DAMAGES IN TRANSACTIONAL LEGAL MALPRACTICE MATTERS: THE NECESSITY OF DEMONSTRATING THE BETTER DEAL, 37 Suffolk U. L. Rev. 393 (2004) [hereinafter Cause-in-Fact] (generally discussing legal malpractice and specifically addressing the dispute regarding the causation in transactional malpractice claims, including the "Case-within-a-Case" approach). See also John M. Palmeri & Franz Hardy, TRANSACTIONAL LEGAL MALPRACTICE CLAIMS: Application of the "Case within a Case" Standard, 50 No. 3 DRI For Def. 48 (2008) (noting that, in the author's opinion, the majority of courts that have addressed causation in a transactional malpractice claim have adopted the case within a case standard).

At least one secondary source has characterized the “case within a case” approach as representing the general rule in the transactional context.<sup>45</sup> The most cited case supporting this approach is the Supreme Court of California's decision in Viner v. Sweet.<sup>46</sup> That court reasoned that:

[there is] nothing distinctive about transactional practice that would justify a relaxation of, or departure from, the well-established requirement in negligence cases that the plaintiff establish causation by showing either (1) but for the negligence, the harm would not have occurred, or (2) the negligence was a concurrent independent cause of the harm.<sup>47</sup>

There, the court rejected an intermediate appellate court's reasons for relaxing the but for test for causation. The lower court relaxed the standard because of the large number of variables necessary to evaluate transactional success when compared to success in litigation. In rejecting a relaxed causation standard, the Supreme Court of California observed that “[c]ourts are properly cautious about making attorneys guarantors of their clients' faulty business judgment.”<sup>48</sup>

Other high courts have likewise required a showing of “but for” causation. For instance, the Supreme Court of Minnesota formally adopted this approach in the transactional setting in Jerry's Enterprises, Inc. v. Larkin et al.<sup>49</sup> There, the court held that in a transactional malpractice matter, “the [proximate cause of damages element] of a cause of action is modified to show that, but for defendant's conduct,

---

<sup>45</sup> See Palmeri & Hardy, TRANSACTIONAL LEGAL MALPRACTICE CLAIMS: Application of the “Case within a Case” Standard (describing the “case within a case” standard as the majority approach).

<sup>46</sup> 70 P.3d 1046 (Cal. 2003).

<sup>47</sup> Id. at 1051.

<sup>48</sup> Id. at 1053 (citing Bauman, Damages for Legal Malpractice: An Appraisal of the Crumbling Dike and Threatening Flood (1988) 61 TEMP. L. REV. 1127, 1154–55).

<sup>49</sup> 711 N.W.2d 811 (Minn. 2006).

the plaintiff would have obtained a more favorable result in the underlying transaction than the result obtained.”<sup>50</sup> When articulating this standard, the Supreme Court of Minnesota held that without a demonstrated failure in the underlying transaction, proximate cause cannot be established under this rule.<sup>51</sup> This approach fits loosely within a “case within a case” analysis. In order to prove causation under this standard, a plaintiff must demonstrate consequences that resulted from the alleged negligence in contrast to what should have resulted from the transaction.<sup>52</sup>

Courts applying this but for standard in transactional malpractice cases require evidence of the potential missing links in the causal chain. Specifically, in claims involving an alleged failure to “obtain or advise of a provision, concession or benefit, the [plaintiff-]client must prove that the other party would have agreed.”<sup>53</sup> Evidence that the other party “might have” agreed to the term is insufficient to meet this showing.<sup>54</sup> These courts reason that without such a showing, juries would have to speculate regarding a myriad of possibilities that could have occurred following the suggestion or failure to suggest an additional term to an agreement. The California Supreme Court and the Supreme Court of Virginia have both required plaintiffs to meet this burden.<sup>55</sup> In doing so, they recognize that absent evidence that the other

---

<sup>50</sup> Id. at 819; See also Adams v. Manion, 2017 WL 2729603 at *2 (Minn. Ct. App. June 26, 2017) (quoting Jerry’s Enterprises, Inc., 711 N.W.2d at 819); Viner, 70 P.3d at 1054 (finding that a plaintiff must show “but for the alleged malpractice, it is more likely than not that the plaintiff would have obtained a more favorable result”).

<sup>51</sup> Id.

<sup>52</sup> 3 Ronald E. Mallen & Jeffrey M. Smith, Legal Malpractice § 24.5 (2019 ed.).

<sup>53</sup> Id. (citing Hazel & Thomas, P.C. v. Yavari, 465 S.E.2d 812, 815 (Va. 1996)).

<sup>54</sup> Id. (citing Hazel, 465 S.E.2d at 815 (finding the plaintiff did not show the other party would have still agreed to the contract where the other party stated he did not know if he would have granted a request for the added provision in the agreement at issue, but “certainly would have found a way to make the deal happen”)).

<sup>55</sup> Viner, 70 P.3d at 1053; Hazel, 465 S.E.2d at 815.

party would have likely agreed to the term, a plaintiff-client has not shown that the negligence proximately caused a loss.<sup>56</sup>

The Court recognizes that apart from these jurisdictions, others relax the nexus necessary to demonstrate proximate cause of harm. For instance, Mr. Sherman relies upon the Wisconsin decision in Estate of Campbell v. Chaney.<sup>57</sup> In that decision, the Court of Appeals of Wisconsin examined a claim involving a premarital agreement.<sup>58</sup> The plaintiff alleged that because of how a drafting attorney structured an agreement, the plaintiff had to engage in unnecessary litigation.<sup>59</sup> Namely, in Chaney, the underlying case settled before a final decision, but after some litigation.<sup>60</sup> In framing the standard regarding causation, the Wisconsin high court required a showing “that the attorneys’ negligence caused weakness in the prenuptial agreement and that the weakness caused litigation.”<sup>61</sup> The court reasoned that it was “immaterial that the agreement might later be enforced after a finding that the widow already knew the financial information . . . . [I]f [a failure] caused the [plaintiff] to settle a claim that a proper agreement would have made meritless, then the attorney may be held liable.”<sup>62</sup>

The defendant-attorney in Chaney argued a strict “case within a case” approach to causation; namely, he argued that because the agreement was not <sup>56</sup> See Viner v. Sweet, 117 Cal. App. 4th 1218 (Cal. Ct. App. 2004) (finding on remand, while recognizing that an “express concession” by the other party of what they would have agreed to is not necessary and that circumstantial evidence can be used to establish causation, that the plaintiff did not identify direct or circumstantial evidence of causation in support of the claim); see also Hazel, 465 S.E.2d at 815 (finding the plaintiff failed to provide sufficient evidence of his attorneys’ negligence when he could not point to any evidence that the other party would have agreed to the additional provisions).

---

<sup>57</sup> 485 N.W.2d 421 (Wis. Ct. App. 1992).

<sup>58</sup> Id. at 423.

<sup>59</sup> Id.

<sup>60</sup> Id.

<sup>61</sup> Id. at 425.

<sup>62</sup> Id.

nullified by judicial decision because the parties had settled mid-litigation, there was no cognizable malpractice claim.<sup>63</sup> In rejecting that argument, the Wisconsin high court adopted a relaxed standard for causation for transactional based claims.<sup>64</sup> When doing so, that court applied what seems to be an improper burden shift.<sup>65</sup> Namely, it denied summary judgment because the defendant-attorney could not show that the plaintiff settled despite a strong probability that the plaintiff would have prevailed.<sup>66</sup> Such an approach does not comport with traditional tort concepts. Rather, it constitutes an improper burden shifting in a loss of chance setting. In fact, it provides for what is nearly alternative liability. Delaware case law has never accepted alternative liability as an exception to the requirement for traditional proximate causation.<sup>67</sup>

The Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals has also held that proving a case within a case is unnecessary in transactional legal malpractice claims.<sup>68</sup> Namely, in Nicolet Instrument Corp. v. Lindquist & Vennum, the Seventh Circuit examined a district court's granting of summary judgment. The district court granted summary judgment because the Plaintiff could not prove that the other party would have agreed to the term at issue.<sup>69</sup> The Seventh Circuit reversed, holding that "but for" causation is not the appropriate benchmark in transactional legal malpractice

---

<sup>63</sup> Id.

<sup>64</sup> Id. (finding the question for summary judgment purposes was "whether the defendant's alleged negligence forced the estate to engage in litigation it otherwise would not have had to engage in").

<sup>65</sup> Id. at 426.

<sup>66</sup> Id.

<sup>67</sup> State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Middleby Corp., 2011 WL 683883, at *3 (Del. Super. Feb. 8, 2011) (explaining that "[i]n the nearly twenty-five years that have passed since Nutt v. A.C. & S. Co., Inc., 517 A.2d 690 (Del. Super. 1986)], the legislature has not authorized collective liability under either the market-share or alternative liability theories, and the Court perceives no reasoned basis for it to impose such a change now").

<sup>68</sup> Nicolet Instrument Corp. v. Lindquist & Vennum, 34 F.3d 453 (7th Cir. 1994)

<sup>69</sup> Id. at 455–56.

actions.<sup>70</sup> To the contrary, it applied what it described as a “not very demanding standard.”<sup>71</sup> In doing so, it recognized the difficulty of proof of causation in legal malpractice cases in even the litigation setting, and the significantly greater difficulty involved in the transactional setting where there often is no “right outcome.”<sup>72</sup> Because of that difficulty, the Seventh Circuit relaxed the standard and did not require the plaintiff to prove that the other party would have likely agreed to the additional term.<sup>73</sup>

These cases and others like them differ from Delaware precedent that applies traditional concepts of proximate cause consistently among tort claims. In legal malpractice claims, the Delaware Supreme Court’s only decision addressing causation, although in the litigation malpractice context, recognized that traditional proximate cause, with a “but for” floor for liability, applied.<sup>74</sup> Alternative liability has not been applied in Delaware in any setting.<sup>75</sup> Moreover, there is no support in Delaware law to relax the standard for only one sub-set (transactional legal malpractice claims) of one type of claim (legal malpractice claims in general), merely because the former, by nature of the challenged attorney action, has an increased number of variables that make it more difficult to prove.

---

<sup>70</sup> Id. at 455.

<sup>71</sup> Id.

<sup>72</sup> Id.

<sup>73</sup> Id.

<sup>74</sup> Flowers, 2011 WL 3592966 at *2.

<sup>75</sup> Nutt v. A.C. & S. Co., Inc., 517 A.2d 690, 694 (Del. Super. 1986) (referencing In re Asbestos Litig., 509 A.2d at 1118 when “declin[ing] to adopt the alternative liability theory in Delaware. [The Court is] satisfied that such a change in traditional tort law should be left to the legislature”); In re Asbestos Litig., 509 A.2d 1116, 1118 (Del. Super. 1986) (explaining that an assumption of product identification would be “mere speculation and would be the establishment of something akin to market-share liability . . . , a change in Delaware tort law which if desired this Court believes is best left to the legislature”), aff’d sub nom. Nicolet, Inc. v. Nutt, 525 A.2d 146 (Del. 1987).

A recent Supreme Court of Mississippi decision that addressed a legal malpractice claim in the transactional context is persuasive.<sup>76</sup> In Gulfport OB-GYN, P.A. v. Dukes, that court examined a claim involving an employment agreement’s covenant not to compete.<sup>77</sup> An employee left the plaintiff-client’s medical practice to start her own practice and challenged its enforceability.<sup>78</sup> After the departing physician prevailed, the plaintiff-client filed a legal malpractice claim against the law firm that drafted the employment agreement because of a missing provision.<sup>79</sup>

In affirming the lower court’s decision to grant summary judgment, the Supreme Court of Mississippi described the required showing of proximate cause where an underlying transaction is at issue.<sup>80</sup> It explained that a legal malpractice claim requires a plaintiff to establish proximate cause by the trial-within-a-trial test, and that while transactional claims may not involve a “trial” or “case,” the “same principles apply: causation ‘turns on whether the attorney’s conduct was the but-for cause of the failure to obtain a more favorable result rather than success or failure in litigation.’”<sup>81</sup> Noting that a substantial majority of courts have followed this rule,<sup>82</sup> the Mississippi court persuasively held that where the complaint is that the attorney should have proposed different or additional terms to a transaction, the malpractice plaintiff must show

---

<sup>76</sup> Gulfport OB-GYN, P.A. v. Dukes, Dukes, Keating & Faneca, P.A., --- So.3d ----, 2019 WL 4071721 (Miss. Aug. 29, 2019).

<sup>77</sup> Id. at *1.

<sup>78</sup> Id.

<sup>79</sup> Id.

<sup>80</sup> Id. at *2–4.

<sup>81</sup> Id. at *2 (quoting Frederick v. Wallerich, 907 N.W.2d 167, 173 (Minn. 2018)) (citing Mahaffey Jr., Cause-in-Fact, at 436–37).

<sup>82</sup> Id. (citing John M. Palmeri, Franz Hardy, Nicole Salamander Irby, Better Deal or No Deal: Causation in Transactional Malpractice Cases, 42 COLO. LAW. 51, 51 (Dec. 2013), which in turn cited Viner v. Sweet, 70 P.3d 1046 (2003); Serafin v. Seith, 672 N.E.2d 302 (1996); Blackhawk Building Systems, Ltd. v. Aspelmeier, Fisch, Power, Warner and Engberg, 428 N.W.2d 288 (Iowa 1988); Jerry's Enters., Inc. v. Larkin, Hoffman, Daly & Lindgren, Ltd., 711 N.W.2d 811 (Minn. 2006); Froom v. Perel, 872 A.2d 1067 (N.J. App. Div. 2005); Hazel and Thomas, P.C. v. Yavari, 465 S.E.2d 812 (Va. 1996); Cannata v. Wiener, 789 A.2d 936 (Vt. 2001)).

that such terms would have been accepted by the other party or that the client would not have entered into the deal and would have been better off for doing so. Absent such proof there exists no genuine issue of material fact as to causation of damages, and summary judgment is appropriate.<sup>83</sup>

Proving causation in a transactional malpractice claim, as in a litigation malpractice claim, requires proof that, but for the attorney's negligence, the plaintiff would have obtained a more favorable result. While ultimate success in litigation in a case like Mr. Sherman's does not per se bar a malpractice claim, when the claim involves alleged negligence in not proposing or including an additional term in a proposed agreement, the plaintiff-client must first show that the other party would have agreed to the omitted term. Without evidence of record supporting a reasonable inference that the opposing party would more likely than not have agreed to the term, there is no genuine issue of material fact regarding proximate cause of damages.

Mr. Sherman does not demonstrate a genuine issue of material fact regarding proximate cause of damages.

At the outset, Mr. Ellis meets his initial burden on summary judgment as to proximate cause. He emphasizes that the Supreme Court held the Agreement to be enforceable. As a result, Mr. Sherman prevailed in the underlying litigation. Accordingly, the burden shifts to Mr. Sherman to demonstrate an issue of fact regarding proximate cause of harm.

In response to Mr. Ellis's motion, Mr. Sherman emphasizes the conflicting deposition testimony of the expert witnesses.<sup>84</sup> He also claims the amount of damages he suffered are not speculative because his litigation attorney, Mr. Gagne, quantified the alleged harm as extra fees and costs incurred during the Family Court litigation and Supreme Court appeal.<sup>85</sup> In his testimony, Mr. Gagne provides an estimate of the attorneys' fees that Mr. Sherman would have incurred had the waiver of disclosure language been included in the Agreement.<sup>86</sup> Specifically, Mr. Gagne believed there would have been no need to hire experts for the Family Court litigation,<sup>87</sup> and that the trial in Family Court would have taken approximately one-half a day.<sup>88</sup> He conceded, however, that he would have still taken some depositions and would have had to litigate the matter in Family Court.<sup>89</sup> Based on this reasoning, Mr. Gagne estimated that the litigation would have cost Mr. Sherman approximately $35,000 to $50,000 in comparison to the $310,000 he charged him.<sup>90</sup>

---

<sup>83</sup> Id. at *4.

<sup>84</sup> Pl. Response, at 3–8.

Mr. Gagne's estimation of the difference in costs—or in other words, an identification of the amount of damages Mr. Sherman incurred—provides sufficient evidence for a reasonable jury to fix an amount of damages. That, however, is not all that is required. There must be sufficient evidence for it to reasonably infer that the alleged negligence proximately caused the harm.

The evidence of record when considered in the light most favorable to Mr. Sherman does not permit that bridge. Namely, Mr. Sherman does not meet his burden by demonstrating that there is a genuine issue of fact regarding whether the costs and fees would not have been incurred but for Mr. Ellis's alleged negligence.<sup>91</sup>

---

<sup>85</sup> Id. at 9–10.

<sup>86</sup> Pl. Response, Ex. F, at 42–43.

<sup>87</sup> Id. at 42:7–42:13 (stating “[s]o with the waiver language in, I would not have retained the experts for the valuations . . . I believe the expert costs and fees associated with depos, and that was to 38,000.00”).

<sup>88</sup> Id. at 42:18–42:19 (stating “[i]t would have been probably a half day trial”).

<sup>89</sup> Id. at 42:13–43:4 (stating “I would have had to go to a trial in Family Court, nonetheless, I would have had the waiver – I still would have taken Tom Gay’s deposition, which I did. I still would have done that even under the err [sic] set of circumstances . . . I still would have taken Ms. Sherman’s deposition . . . [Mr. Sherman] would have been . . . And I assume Ms. Dougherty would have taken Mr. Ellis’s deposition even had the waiver language be [sic] in there”).

<sup>90</sup> Id. at 43:4–43:18 (stating “[a]n estimate, probably 35 to 50 [thousand dollars]”).

<sup>91</sup> Flowers, 2011 WL 3592966 at *2.

Because the underlying action is a transaction and involves the claim that Mr. Ellis failed to include a particular provision in the Agreement, Mr. Sherman would have to demonstrate evidence justifying a jury's inference, that more likely than not, his ex-wife would have accepted the Agreement with the additional provision.

In this regard, the Court recognizes that the evidence permits a clear inference that she might have.<sup>92</sup> This “might have” evidence includes the ex-wife’s agreement to other unfavorable terms, and Ms. Jones’s expert opinion.<sup>93</sup> Alone, the former does not constitute a circumstance supporting an inference of a probability that Mr. Sherman’s ex-wife would have agreed to a wholly separate term. In addition, Ms. Jones conceded the same in her deposition testimony where she admitted that speculation would be necessary to make that assumption.<sup>94</sup> In support of Ms. Jones’s opinion regarding proximate cause of harm, she cited the fact that Mr. Sherman’s ex-wife signed the Agreement against her attorney’s advice. Nevertheless, Ms. Jones testified that she does not “think there is any way of knowing where [sic] whether she would have refused signing the prenup if that statement had been in there or not.”<sup>95</sup> In fact, she confirmed the degree of speculation regarding the ex-wife’s agreement to such a term to be “pure speculation.”<sup>96</sup>

Here, the record contains no testimony from Mr. Sherman’s ex-wife, one of the two parties to the Agreement, bearing on this material issue. Nor does it contain testimony from the attorney who advised her. As recognized in the Viner decision, while an express concession of acceptance is not necessary to prove proximate cause

---

<sup>92</sup> See Mallen & Smith, Legal Malpractice (citing Hazel, 465 S.E.2d at 815 when explaining that it is “not sufficient to show that the other party ‘might have’ agreed” to prove proximate cause of harm in a transactional malpractice claim).

<sup>93</sup> Pl. Response, Ex. D “Deposition of Judy M. Jones,” at 39:15–46:5.

<sup>94</sup> Id. at 40:1–40:4.

<sup>95</sup> Id. at 41:12–41:15.

<sup>96</sup> Id. at 41:15.

of harm, there must at a minimum be circumstantial evidence of a probability of acceptance of the term.<sup>97</sup>

The Court recognizes that proving proximate cause of harm will often be challenging in circumstances, such as the one at hand, where the decision maker was and remains an adverse party to the malpractice-plaintiff. As the California Supreme Court correctly recognized in Viner, however, “difficulties of proof cannot justify imposing liability for injuries that the attorney could not have prevented by performing according to the required standard of care.”<sup>98</sup> On balance, the record contains no evidence—direct or circumstantial—that permits a reasonable inference that Mr. Sherman’s ex-wife would have more likely than not agreed to this critical term. Because (1) the but for standard for proximate cause represents the evidentiary floor for establishing proximate cause, and (2) a critical link in the causal chain is missing in this record, summary judgment must be granted in favor of Mr. Ellis.

Conclusion

When considering the facts of record in the light most favorable to Mr. Sherman, there is no genuine issue of material fact regarding whether Mr. Ellis proximately caused Mr. Sherman’s alleged damages. As a result, Mr. Ellis’s Motion for Summary Judgment must be GRANTED.

---

<sup>97</sup> Viner, 70 P.3d at 1053.

<sup>98</sup> Id.